EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

MR. GOULD weeps because Western Union stock has fallen to 49½.

THERE are plenty of Presidential dark horses in Pennsylvania. Hon. Wayne MacVeagh is a representative one.

SENATOR EDMUNDS keeps cool and avoids sunstroke by playing the part of an iceberg.

MACVEAGH'S sharp, incisive letter was universally read and seemed to please some while it disgusted others.

THE bill to place General Grant on the retired list is asleep in the House. It should be awakened and made into law.

THE steamship Great Eastern will be in the New Orleans harbor during the Exposition and will be used as a hotel.

THE coming New Orleans exposition promises to be a great success. Its building will probably be the largest of the kind in the world.

WHEN the vital issues of the base ball contest are settled, the country will be at liberty to give its attention to the election of President.

FERDINAND WARD now languishes in jail. Many of our younger citizens attended school with him about thirteen years ago in the Bellefonte Academy.

SAM WARD, wit, scholar, gourmand and political intriguer, died in Pegli, Italy, on Tuesday, the 20th. He was an American, a brother of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, of Boston.

NEW YORK city spends $3,000,000 annually on churches and $7,000,000 on amusements, which goes to show that she is having more fun in this world than she will see in the next.

WILLIAMSPORT might have a mass meeting.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin. Pray what is the exciting subject that would furnish occasion for a mass meeting this warm weather?

SENATOR EDMUNDS is the owner of the largest tombstone manufactory in Vermont.—L. H. Express. He should begin the erection of a handsome monument to ornament the grave of the Democratic party.

A NUMBER of English and Scotch capitalists have bought 28,000 acres of mineral lands, near Chattanooga, Tenn., and will soon begin the erection of two blast furnaces on the tract with a capacity of 250 tons.

A CORRESPONDENT writes that General Gordon has not read a newspaper for the past five years. This eccentricity accounts for General Gordon's ignorance of affairs in the Soudan. A file of American papers ought to be smuggled into Khartoum, in order to inform him of his danger and the most practicable way of escape.

ANY action by a college faculty that serves to intensify the undergraduate's thirst for knowledge is commendable. The offer of a prize by Prof. Johnson, of Princeton, for the best fielding average of the college ball nine this season will undoubtedly stimulate the students to still more assiduous devotion to the science of pitching double curves and stopping hot balls.

NOT long ago a big whale got stranded on one of the Shetland Islands. A venturesome small boy thought he was dead, and sat down on his snout. The whale showed that he objected to this liberty by giving a snort which sent the small boy flying into the water fifty feet away. When he swam ashore he knew more about whale than he ever did before.

Blaine and Lincoln.

The Republican National Convention will meet on the 3d day of June. The delegates to that gathering are even now preparing to attend. From North, South, East and West the representatives of the great popular party to the number of over 800 are gathering. With them come thousands of interested people—some from motives of curiosity, some with the interests of candidates in view, others perhaps with the idea of committing the party to some peculiar policy. But the principle work of the convention will be the nomination of a President and Vice President. The men who attend that convention as delegates are acute, wise and statesmanlike. They know as well as a professional political economist just what is for the best interests of this Nation. They have felt the popular pulse and know for what and for whom it beats. If they they dont know this they are faithless delegates. It is their business to know it. They don't go to that convention to represent themselves, but to represent a glorious 40,000,000 Republicans, 8,000,000 of whom are voters. Who do those 40,000,000 Republicans desire them to nominate for President? The Maine statesman, the incomparable man, the people's idol—James G. Blaine. They desire it more at this time than ever before. The trouble is the delegates forget their responsibility. They are only sent to Chicago because the people cant go there and their only purpose is to represent the wills of the people. If the people could go to Chicago they would do so and act for themselves. Who do those 40,000,000 Republicans desire them to nominate for Vice President? The rising statesman, the spotless citizen of Illinois, the son of Old Abe—Robert T. Lincoln. Around these two men cluster the brightest popular affections. The popular will cannot be satisfied with any others. If Blaine and Lincoln are not nominated on the first ballot it will be because more than one delegate proves recreant to his trust, because he has betrayed a confidence, because there is a traitor in the camp. There is no necessity for a compromise candidate. Dark horses are out of the field this year—in fact, all of whatever color are distanced. A sufficient number of counties in all the States have emphatically declared that Blaine is their first choice, and the Plumed Knight will be nominated if that expressed will has a tithe of influence over these public servants. If they don't act with due respect to their constituents relegate them to private life henceforth and forever. As for Lincoln, the declarations for him are even more pronounced and unanimous. There is almost no other name mentioned for the second place on the ticket. If there are other aspirants let them bide their time, until 1892 for instance (giving Blaine and Lincoln two terms) and then we'll select the best from among them. Hurrah for Blaine and Lincoln!

Vanderbilt's Sentiments.

When William H. Vanderbilt landed in Liverpool a correspondent of the Philadelphia Press interviewed him, and it seems to us the wealthy gentleman delivered himself of different sentiments from those he usually gives in such interviews in America. Of all the money kings of this country Vanderbilt usually shows the least sympathy for the poor man and so far as liberality is concerned his donations and gifts have been until quite recently entirely unknown. For that reason the press has never alluded very kindly to him, and he was even heard once to say that he will be willing to give a prize to the first newspaper that will speak of him with respect. But, a change has of late been noticeable in him. Before stepping on the steamer at the time of his departure he voluntarily presented General and Mrs. Grant deeds of property amounting to $150,000, and now in his interview with the Philadelphia Press correspondent we read of words of genuine sympathy for the poor men who have suffered by the late panic. He believes the panic will result in improving the business methods of Wall street and in that respect will be beneficial, and the magnate's only regret is because of his solicitude for the innocent sufferers. Such sentiments from Vanderbilt are new and strange. What has produced this change?

What it Cost.

Up to date seventy-five speeches for or against Mr. Morrison's late bill have been printed in the Record. They vary in length from half a page to fourteen pages. The longest speech was by Mr. Wood of Indiana. These seventy-five speeches cover 360 pages of the Record, equivalent to nearly two volums of the "American Cyclopædia," and sufficient to fill the DAILY NEWS, to the exclusion of everything else, for about two months. Tables are the stronghold of tariff speechmakers. They get up tables about everything conceivable, from the price of bacon in Tennessee during a term of years to the fluctuations of the diamond market at Amsterdam. Of the seventy-five speeches not more than three or four are unembellished by a table of some kind. It seems there is a tradition about the Capitol that a tariff speech without a table is a failure. Of the 360 pages of tariff speeches, 105, by actual measurement, are covered by tables. Of the fourteen dreary pages of Mr. Wood's speech seven are covered by tables, seven columns deep. Many of the tables printed with these speeches were repeated a dozen times.

The members who came last scissored from those who had preceded them. Thus a table giving comparative rates of wages in Europe and America appeared in the efforts of a large number of protectionists. The free traders printed and reprinted and kept on printing a table showing that the last tariff effected a reduction of but 1.74 per cent.

It is estimated that the aggregate cost of printing this flood of tariff information in the Record, type setting, presswork, paper, &c., has been more than $10,000. But this is only a small per cent. of what Morrison's bill has cost the Government, and so that unfortunate measure has, after all, aided indirectly in accomplishing its author's purpose of reducing the surplus in the Treasury.

SENATOR J. DONALD CAMERON, who is the son of his papa, arrived from Europe on Tuesday, the 20th, and landed in Philadelphia. Senator Cameron has not increased in flesh since his departure, but his general health is unusually good. He says he knows nothing about the present condition of politics. But if we may believe the newspaper scribes (and if they are like the scribe of the NEWS, their word is unimpeachable), the supporters of the Presidential candidacy of Blaine and Arthur, respectively, are each endeavoring to secure the support of the Senator for their favorite candidate. Of all things, this, we believe, to be the supremely foolish and absurd action. We are perfectly willing that the supporters of Arthur shall secure the help of Cameron, for we do not believe that his support will really aid any candidate. We believe that Cameron is individually, a first-class gentleman and the people believe so too, but they are perfectly willing—yes, even anxious—to trust the dominance in Pennsylvania Republican politics into other hands for a season, just for a change. Variety, they believe to be the spice of life, and rotation in office is to them a golden rule. Cameron pere and Cameron fils has led the Republicans of Pennsylvania on to victory more than once, but their day of triumph is past, and there are as good fish in the sea as have ever been caught.

BEFORE another issue of the Republican reaches our readers it is probable that the next President of the United States will be nominated.

The Muster of the Convention.

It is given out, remarks the Philadelphia Press, that a large proportion of the Edmunds delegates will go to Arthur. This is precisely what we have expected and predicted from the beginning; and because the Press, as a piece of political intelligence, stated that the Edmunds enterprise was only a tender to the Arthur movement, it was criticised in some quarters as unfair. But suppose they all go to Arthur, what then? The coalition will muster as follows:—

Arthur	279
Edmunds	72
Total	351

And even then the combination will be short of the direct, positive vote for Blaine alone. Here are the figures, taking the most trustworthy that can be given:—

Blaine	364
Anti-Blaine Combination	351

This is assuming that all of the Southern vote for Arthur will stick to him—and those may believe this who choose to. Classifying the elements in the Convention that are naturally affiliated, and they stand thus:—

Arthur	279	Blaine	364
Edmunds	72	Logan	53
		Sherman	23
Total	351	Total	440

The twelve votes for Hawley and other scattering votes are not included on either side. We have followed our own table given some time ago, though we have since received corrections which add to Blaine's vote. And we have counted that part of Arthur's Southern vote which is nominal as all for him.

The friends of Mr. Blaine have never been so hopeful as now and never have had as good reason to be.

THE drift of opinion is that Wayne MacVeagh's letter was untimely, illtempered, and beneath the dignity of a man aspiring to statesmanship. He should have remembered the fate of poor Badeau, who once wrote a letter.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin. That is the "drift of opinion," is it? Well, please give us your opinion on the subject. O course, you are not guided merely by popular sentiment in announcing your own opinion.

THE postal telegraph scheme has advanced as far as favorable report from the Senate Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads. The committee presents a well digested measure whose practicability has yet to be demonstrated in the elaborate discussion which will necessarily precede its adoption by Congress. That event will not occur at this session, most probably, or at the next, but the ultimate passage of some postal telegraph bill is pretty well assured.

A LETTER written by General Sherman, in which he declines peremptorily and positively to be a presidential candidate under any circumstances, is reported by telegraph to be in the hands of a trusty Blaine delegate, to be read, if necessary, in the Chicago convention. This would indicate that friendly relations exist between the Blaine and Sherman men and support the rumor made some time ago that Blaine's second choice was Sherman.

A CALF stood on the Naugatuck Railroad track a few days ago, and thus stopped an approaching train. This action saved the life of a drunken man who was lying on the track a few yards beyond. Such cases of one brute helping another are becoming common. But it is to be feared the drunken man would not have done so much for the calf.

THE Rev. Dr. Fowler, just elected a Methodist bishop, was a lively youngster, years ago. It is related that when he was studying for the ministry at Garrett Biblical Institute, he painted jet black a pet calf belonging to President Jones, of the Woman's College at Evanston, Ill.

THE Omaha Daily Bee is edited by an individual rejoicing in the sweet name of Rosewater.

Salary Grabbers.

ED. REPUBLICAN: While traveling through a section of your county I got into a little controversy with two Democrats of Spring Mills and I asserted that the members of the legislature from Centre county last winter were both in the list of salary grabbers and took all the pay for recess and time not served. This was denied on the ground that they never saw it in the papers. Now, Mr. Editer, will you decide whether the fact charged is true and thus give these blind people light that is withheld in their own papers.

VIATOR.

Our impression is that our correspondent's charge is correct. We have never read of Hon. Mr. Hunter or Mr. Meyer refusing to take the entire amount of their pay for the extra session, although it accomplished nothing and was time only wasted. However, if the charge is not true either of the gentlemen mentioned are at liberty to use these colums in giving conclusive proof to the contrary.

THE N. Y. Sun alludes to the individuals who constitute the presiding element in the National House of Representatives as "the fog-bewildered Democratic majority." The Watchman copies the editorial. It is refreshing to notice that even these radical political journals are awakening to the fact that the average Democratic legislator is incompetent to understand the great questions that come before him, and the people of the country will do well to make him step down and out and commit the duty of legislation into the hands of his more experienced Republican brothers.

ROSWELL PRINCE FLOWER, compromise candidate from Mr. Tilden's bailiwick, is another flower that was "Born to blush unseen and waste its sweetness on the desert air." He is said to be a protectionist and that sort is not wanted this year in the Democratic convention. Four years after this, with the experience of the election of 1884, Democrats will have changed their view of the tariff question as they have upon many others, when it is too late to do them any good.

WM. H. ENGLISH, of Indiana, has finally got his son seated in the chair in Congress to which the people elected another man. It is estimated by well informed parties that in accomplishing this ambitious object the elder English must have recklessly squandered fully $2.87½.

THE problem presented to the Republicans seems to be who can carry New York. If Arthur is nominated the problem will be easy of solution. Judging by the result in 1882, it is plain that in such a case the Democrats will carry it by a sufficiently large majority.

ABOUT this time of the year the college graduate begins to tap his universal wisdom and knowledge, and let it flow over the world. It does not hurt the world nor the young man, and makes the commencement exercises interesting.

CONGRESSMAN LANHAM, of Texas, has a large district. It embraces an area about equal to that of Ohio, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Delaware and Maryland combined.

IT appears that the burning of Willard's Hotel in Washington was more of a blessing than otherwise. Several hundred thousand copies of free trade speeches in Chairman Morrison's room were destroyed.

SENATOR EDMUNDS protests again that he does not want to be president. Thus far we have failed to detect any general disposition to ignore the Senator's wishes in this matter.

THE Memphis Avalanche has discovered a Hancock boom. The Avalanche must have a powerful microscope.

B. G. Halsey, of Speonk, L. I., missed five ducks and three hens over a month ago. The other day he found the ducks and two hens in his ice house. They had been buried alive 40 days, without food or water. Their eyes were shrunken, and they were so weak that they could hardly stand.

The medical press has been crowded for the last year with articles on the new remedy for heart disease—lily of the valley—but now a student comes to the front with an old German book, which he found in Rome, which speaks in the highest terms of this same remedy for the same disease.

A physician got up in the Pennsylvania State Medical Society the other day and said that there was more rabies from rum than from mad dogs. If a man dies from hydrophobia it is announced all over the world; but if a hundred die of alcoholic convulsions, almost like those of rabies humana, nothing is said about it.

Two birds, male and female, belonged to Mr. Calbert, of Oakland, Cal. On Monday the female bird died, and the male bird, after one or two plaintive notes, became mute and refused to eat. Tuesday afternoon the owner went to see how the bird fared, and found that it had squeezed its head through the wires of its cage and strangled itself to death.

According to an Egyptian paper the word Pasha is derived from two Persian words, which signify the "feet of the Shah," and dates from the days when Cyrus gave to his different officers of State the names of hands, feet, eyes and tongues, according to the different vocations assigned them. Thus the title conveys in its derivations the idea of military service.

Poetry.

NIGHT-SONG.

The moon is up in splendor,
And golden stars attend her;
The heavens are calm and bright;
Trees cast a deepening shadow,
And slowly off the meadow
A mist is rising, silver white.

Night's curtains now are closing
Round half a world, reposing
In calm and holy trust;
All seems one vast, still chamber,
Where weary hearts remember
No more the sorrows of the dust.

SLEEP.

Sleep! the soother of all care!
Calms the mind oppressed with grief;
Though in dreams we may despair,
Sleep still brings the wished relief.

Slumber is the gold of life,
Paying sorrow's weary debt;
Though 'tis sweet to end a strife,
It is sweeter to forget.

A Trip to Australia.

WRITTEN BY A WITTY WOMAN—A VISIT TO HONOLULU—CITIES, TOWNS AND LIQUOR IN AUSTRALIA.

BY MRS. REBECCA LONGSHORE.

On English Mail Steamship Australia, Pacific Ocean, 23° S. Lat., 173 Longitude, Jan. 9th, 1884.

ED. BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN, Bellefonte, Pa: A short time ago, when travelling from Columbus to California, I took the liberty to send to some of your subscribers through you some scribblings on the way, which I suppose were rather illegible as I wrote while traveling on the cars. I take the liberty again of sending more jottings which are at your disposal for the paper or waste basket.

I reached the far famed city of San Francisco, Cal., on the 20th of December. The morning was very foggy which obstructed the view as we approached the city pier. After the arrival of the train I, with a number of the passengers accepted the invitation of Mr. Giddings to visit the rooms of the Col. Immigration Society, to see specimens of the products of California. There were apples, pears, grapes, cereals, pumpkins, squashes of mammoth size, the product of silk culture, &c., all of which were splendid and almost surprising to behold. One specimen of red Mediterranean wheat which he brought from Pennsylvania when compared with the California wheat, looked small. 'Tis said they have a great variety of climate, for it is a very large State. The next day it rained, as it is now the rainy season, but I saw some of the sights. On Christmas there was a gorgeous display of almost everything. The market was a surprise to one from a cold climate, for there were fresh vegetables, fruits and flowers—luxuries to be enjoyed throughout the year—to those who may be the happy residents of California.

January 22nd. The English steamer Australia with her colors flying, and the Stars and Stripes also flowing in the breze.

With the usual goods-byes we started from the wharf for Sydney, Australia. We went out in the bay and remained until midnight–when the English Mail was brought out by a tug–and we passengers were soon made aware by the tossing that we had taken our final leave It was unusually rough. The next morning—Oh dear? There was a general wail went up from each state room, not in harmonious concert, but whenever there was a contraction of the sea-sick stomach. By an effort of will I made deck in the afternoon, so in a day or two was all right. 'Twas rough for several days. then we enjoyed a little pleasant sailing before we arrived at Honolulu on the 30th. This is the capital of Oahu, one of the Sandwich Islands. There was a large amount of cargo to be unloaded here; so the passengers had an opportunity of going on land and see where we could send word back home. Then some of the passengers hired carriages and went sight seeing. I, having no travelling company, felt myself alone on the street of this far-off island. I thought: Well! But all right, I'll be the most likely to have my own way. I saw some ladies on their way to church, so I concluded to speak to one who had an intelligent face. Don't you think it is always best, Mr. Ed, to consult with an intelligent, good woman before undertaking anything of importance; (Mrs. Ed. does). I feel quite assured and most men do too, at some time in their lives, but sometimes rather late to avoid the inconveniences, to say the least, that may arise from not doing so. I approached and addressed her and asked the points of interest, &c., of their far-off home. She kindly told me. The greatest, she said, was the Pali, a road which led up to a high mountain, on the top of which we could have a beautiful view, of both sides. She said she was sorry she could not go with me but she was going to teach her class in Sunday School.

Near the centre of the grounds is a tasty little building made of lattice work in which the band plays every morning, when His Majesty breaks his fast. We conclude that he should have a very harmonious digestion. Gossip says that he and the queen do not live without some unharmony. Perhaps the music is to calm his feelings after getting a Caudle lecture. According to report, he needs them. In the Government grounds I saw the statue of Kamehamcha who conquered the other islands. Saw a private pond in which were gold fish, that were used to supply the owner's table. An article of food is the Poi plant, which requires the ground to be covered with water. It has long roots. These are baked in the ground (as the nativesdo all their cooking), then mashed, mixed with water, put away in vessels or barrels, left to ferment, then is ready to use. Whenever needed 'tis taken in dishes, and put on the floor. They surround it, dip their fingers in it, and eat it. 'Tis very rich and sweet. The leaves are large. They are also used to wrap things in in lieu of paper.

The natives are rapidly dying off. They are adopting the habits of what we call civilized people. A year ago it was $1000 fine to sell spirituous liquors to a native.

The greed of gain will prompt some persons to do anything. Now that is removed they are quite dissipated This opens the way to other vices and excesses, so disease and death are the results. I wanted to see the lepers. It being Sunday, my guide had to get a permit for which he drove to the necessary official. I staid in the yard to see the fruit and flowers while he went up to see him. Just inside the gate on the ground sat a middle aged native woman, washing dishes by pouring water from one to the other, then breaking off handfuls of grass and wiping them. To add to the novelty, she had a cigar compressed between her lips, smoking away very contented looking. I passed on to where a younger one was taking some tamarinds from a tree. I spoke to her and she answered promptly. I was surprised she used such good language. Speaking to my guide about it afterwards he said: "Oh, she is educated and cared for by a white man." Such is very common here. Then you men are noted for your morality. To tell the truth, we are not. I afterwards learned they have much immorality. The official came down stairs to tell me he was sorry, but he was afraid I could not go as it was Sunday. I expressed my regrets. I then told him I was a physician and wanted information. I plead my own case, after which he smiled, bowed and said. "Madam, I guess you can go." So the Madam thanked him, stepped in and was off to the leper's hospital, which was a mile down the beach, a beautiful drive. I stopped, gathered some shells and reef coral. Arriving there, saw a number of wooden buildings enclosed by a high pale fence. It was all covered with sand. All along the inside were the poor lepers. They all looked clean, but sad to behold. As I walked along to see them more closely many of them spoke to me. On the outside were their friends who had come to see them. Many were close to the fence exchanging cigars, expressing their affection and in some cases their sorrow, as I saw some of the young women weeping, for there are the young and old of both sexes. Formerly any one suspicioned of the dreadful disease was sent to Molakia Islands where they were kept ever afterwards, until death came to there relief. There were many sent away that had scrofula or perhaps some skindisease, who would in time get better, but there the poor creatures were compelled to stay with lepers, revolting as it was to them.

When the boats started with their diseased ones 'twas said to be heart-rending for there were husband and wife, parents and children, lover and maiden forcibly separated. No wonder there would be shriek after shriek, groan after groan, or that some would fall fainting after thus being forever separated from all that was near and dear to them. One instance is reported where a woman swam a long distance from shore where the boat anchored to kiss her husband good bye. This accomplished, she swam back to some boats with her long hair streaming in the water, and frequently waved her hand to her husband to assure him she was thinking of him. These scenes aroused the sympathy of many and in time the hospital at Honalulu was established, where they are kept until all doubt is removed, then they that are deemed incurable in time are sent away, but they become somewhat prepared for it. I then returned to the ship, with flowers and branches, feeling that I had a pleasant and profitable ride. On the wharf the natives had articles they had made for sale. There were collars, bracelets and neat little satchels made from dark seeds. Would like to have a specimen of of each for myself and friends, but it would require "heap of papeaches," as the Indian says

Soon after getting off the ship the lady whom I had met in the morning called for me to take a ride. I of course accepted, we went to the first church built on the Island by the missionaries in 1823, called the native church, a large stone building with basement, a stone portico and wide stone steps on the three sides. The moss on them felt soft and cool as I ascended them. I was introduced to Mr. Bingham (slim and tall, 6ft. 4in. in height) an old missionary, who had grown gray and feeble in his noble work. He told us they had meeting in the forenoon, but then he was teaching some of the natives from one of the neighboring islands, that they might carry the word to their friends. His voice was almost gone, but his face was radiant, and the windows of his soul beamed with delight as he labored with his small but interesting class.

When I passed out a young bright boy of perhaps 17 was standing up before him talking, I suppose telling him what he realized, what he wanted to become, &c. I could not understand, but I judged from the happiness each manifested. If some who are working in behalf of those far-off ones could have seen even that, they would have felt encouraged. We passed on to see his wife who devotes all her time to their chosen work. She was in an adjoining room, but as we aproached we heard her earnest tones supplicating in the native tongue. A dozen or two of native women were kneeling with her, and as she ceased, one of them led in prayer, then another. Then we passed quietly out, feeling those earnest workers would certainly meet a bright reward. I then went back of the church, to the enclosure that contained all that remained of those noble Christians who had sacrificed so much that they might carry the word of light and truth to those brothers and sisters in the far off sea. The shade of those beautiful tropical trees rested on them. As they stretched their great branches over them I felt the sanctity of the spot.

Just in front of this church is the Mausoleum of Sunalelo Ka Moi, the sixth king, reigned one year, was beloved by his people, died in 1874. This was buuilt by his father. They plucked a flower from it and gave me a relic. But it is not supposed by some his body is there, for they are generally buried in a cavern away in the mountains, which is kept a secret, for they think if any of the enemies get the bones or anything belonging to the deceased it will make him miserable, that he will have no happiness.

As we drove on, we passed the handsome home of Ruth Kelikolami, governess of the island, sister of Kamehameba, noted for her kindness, died in 1883, and left much to the poor. After passing other pleasant homes, they took me to their own pleasant home on Emma St. Its lovely inside floors, covered with nice cool matting, high ceilings; walls covered with pictures and mottoes and vines trailing around them, and so many pretty crevices which none but a tasty, ingenious mind could conceive: the books, piano, easy chairs, lace curtains, windows and doors open, with the pure sea air passing through on the 29th of December made me almost feel that I had been transplanted to fairyland. We partook of a nice dinner, had native apples and oranges for dessert. I have eaten a great many oranges since I crossed the Rockies, but did not know what a good orange was until I ate one raised on th Sandwich Islands—such a sweet juicy luxury.

After dinner they gave me a glass of tamarinds, put down in sugar to make a drink of as good as lemonade. They also gave me some specimens: a beautiful piece of white coral, some specimens of lava from the crater of Kilamea, the largest active volcano in the world. The crater of Haleakala on the isle of Marie is the largest extinct in the world. I also receved a specimen of sulphur from Kilamea. This was from a family who had come from Germany many years ago. The father died a year ago and the daughter, an only child, was carrying on the store. She had just returned from a visit to a neighboring island to visit the noted volcano mountains, Mt. Soa, 13,800 feet high, circumference of crater 9 miles. 'Tis seething hot, yet people venture to the very edge. Near by is Mt. Rea, 14,600 feet high, always covered with snow.

Another drive we passed what they call the plantation where a wealthy native lived. For every child that was born to them, the grandfather had 1000 cocoa and 1000 pine apple trees planted and $1,000 put in the bank which was the property of the new guest.

They regreted they could not take me to Wakeka, the watering place, which is 3 miles from Honolulu, and Kapiolani (driving park) named for their present queen. But my time had expired. They took me to the wharf where we saw the little Ireny, who was standing up in her carriage. She is King Kallakua's niece, as he has no children. We went on the boat, where I thanked them most gratefully for their kindness to me, a stranger, but they assured me it had given them as much pleasure as it possibly could me, gave me a cordial invitation to come and see them on my return, kissed me good-bye and departed—and I thought how much happier this good woman and daughter have made my visit to Oahu. I cannot return it to them, I do not suppose, but I'll bestow it on some one else who may need it more, who I hope will extend to some others. Some persons are so reticent with strangers who come to their towns or homes. They little know when in a strange land how a kindness is appreciated. The steamer moved off. The cannon boomed its farewell, and we were soon out on the ocean—Australia boun1, instead of homeward bound. In relating our experiences in the evening, as I had such a variety to tell, they called me the Yankee.

The next day was the last of the year, which we had welcomed with friends at home, now we were to bid it adieu, on the sober Pacific. It hurriedly passed, crowding our memories with the varied experiences it had brought with it. For the last time its shadows fell gently upon us, and we retired confidently hoping that her successor would deal as gently with us as she had. We fell asleep and were awaked by a long deep whistle. What is the cause? Are we nearing land? Oh, no! We are bidding the old year good-bye as it takes its final flight. Streams of music, too, come from the dining hall through the passage ways to our rooms, causing us to silently join in bidding farewell to the Old Year and welcoming the New.

In the morning we each received from the Captain a card with his compliments, and through the day met many wishes for a "Happy New Year." In the afternoon we were entertained by different sports by gentlemen. Some of them were quite athletes. Four young men run a race with an egg in a spoon, to see which could run the length of the deck without dropping it.

New Years, as at Christmas, we had an early dinner. Wine, champagne, claret, &c., flowed in abundance. As they attempted to fill a glass placed by me with champagne I sent it away saying: "No, I never drink anything but water," and I was the only one at our table that did, and I should think the only one in the room as far as I could learn. I believe in every one standing firm to their temperance principles under any and all circumstances. We have been having the N. trade winds, which made it rather pleasant; but as we approached the Equator it was very warm. Thick clothing was exchanged for thinner. Thursday, the 3rd, it was announced that we would cross the Equator, that Neptune would appear and shave all those who had never before crossed. They told us we must be prepared for the siege. Soon after dark a horn blew from both decks to announce that Neptune was approaching from his watery element. We hastened to see him, and soon he came seated on a small chariot, with great, long, dark locks, heavy mustache and enveloped in a mantle.

Beside him was his pale faced wife, dressed in becoming attire. There was a red light on one side and green on the other side of the chariot. It was drawn by two water Nymphs enveloped in white fleecy robes, preceded by four policemen and one slender youth of color. They halted and read the names of those who were to be led before the king. A young English tourist was the first called. He failed to appear. The policeman brought him before Neptune, who wielded his sceptre and told him in deep tones that he must submit. His face was lathered, the barber whetted his razor, which was wooden with a blade three feet long, drew it several times across the victim's face, after which he was douced in a huge tub of water much to the amusement of the others, the victim doing what he could to splash the others. Several more were called and went through the same performance. These were all young and jolly and I think were among the planners, as I saw they were well prepared for what they had to go through. Those who would not submit were fined 20 shillings or $2.50. One lady was called and led before Neptune. Then I hastened to my room, remained awhile and when I returned the troupe was just passing to the foremast, where they said Old Neptune would return to the sea. They halted—a great flash of red, then green light sky rockets, &c., were sent off and the hilarity ceased. The captain (who enjoys the sports), seeing me, came and asked why I did not respond when I was called. They had looked and could not find me. There were two Sisters of Charity on one side of me and a priest on the other side. I told him I belonged to the spiritual crowd of the ship; that I suppose we devotees were trying to keep the reputation of the ship. He looked rather skeptical at me, although I spoke with all sobriety. The ladies laughed, in which he joined and said I'd be expected to pay my fine. I handed him a $5 gold piece for change, but he said Neptune never made change and it was to go to the Sailor's Home and support of their families when left destitute. I acquiesced. There were about 60 passengers—a pleasant, lively collection—somevery intelligent ones, musicians and artists, consuls and preachers, lawyers, authors, lecturers, doctors and teachers, but all enjoy fun on ship.

The other day they had Court, trying an assault and battery case, one breach of promise and another of land swindle. Last evening there was a concert. We had splendid music. Mr. Levy, an Israelite, who was returning from a tour through Europe (whose annual income is £1000) a composer, &c., makes the piano almost talk. The object was to raise money for the Sailors' fund; succeeded in getting $73. Do not think it is all fun, for we read and write a great deal and have church every Sabbath. This is an English steamer, so the services are of the Church of England, conducted by the Captain, assisted by the Doctor of the ship, who imbibes rather freely. As I was writing I could see the bar, saw that he went to it four times to get "Spirituous" strength to go through the ceremony of imparting spiritual instruction to us. I thought how very elevating it is to have the Scriptures breathed to you through fumes of liquor. I often wonder why men are so weak that they thus yield to temptation. Isn't it well that we have so many women who are strong enough to discard all such indulgence?

Yesterday evening the ocean was so calm that it looked like a great mirror reflecting the blue sky, the white, fleecy, gray, and dark clouds, and we passed so rapidly along it looked like a great panorama with constantly changing views. As the boat plowed through the water the waves did not splash and foam, as usual, but heavily backed away like a great bed of liquid glass. The sun surrounded by all his gorgeous beauty, just sinking behind the gold and silver gray, flimy clouds sent his lingering rays upon those peaceful waves, which acted as a prism and separated the primary colors, which were seen in the depth or cavity of the waves, and all was surpassingly beautiful. Experienced tourists said they had never seen anything to equal it.

January 12. We retired last night, which was Thursday, but when we got up this morning they told us it was Saturday. In coming from the east to this point we lose a day, but when returning a day is gained, so that instead of having no Friday morning we have two Thursdays' in one week in traveling east.

Sunday 13th, approaching New Zealand, we see land and some great mountains. On one prominent ledge we see a light house, but near it are great rocks. But a few weeks ago, a ship was wrecked there. Those that were saved got out on the prominence and remained until they were rescued. How terrible it would be to be shipwrecked! I do not think the labor of the poor sailor is fully appreciated. The clouds and rain prevent our seeing much. Near 8 a. m., we are safely piloted into the Auckland harbor, where over 300 large sacks of mail are delivered, and a lot of bone dust and much other freight.

Auckland is the principal town in the north part of New Zealand. It is very hilly, has many nice buildings. The streets are wide, sidewalks paved with stone and brick. I had two little children for my guides. We went to the park which is on the top of a hill, from where I had a beautiful view of the town, the harbor below with the boats, schooners plying about and the steamer with its great high masts and floating colors. Auckland has a population of 33,000. We got beautiful flowers.

The table had an addition of peas, pine apples, pears, lettnce, cabbage, &c., &c., quite an accession. In the evening we again unfurled sails, and, amid the cheers of hundreds of people who had assembled to visit the boat and see us off, moved from port. The cannon boomed a parting-salute and we were soon out on the ocean sailing. But many of our passengers left us at Auckland, which quite reduced our company. But we got along pleasantly, all anxious to reach Sydney, which we did on the 18th. The night before we had a severe storm. The boat rocked and tossed, the captain and assistants were up all night; the poor sailors at their posts working. I went on deck early lest I should miss seeing the beauties of the far-famed Sydney harbor, but the rain came in torrents. Soon it partly cleared away, and we saw we were approaching land, and soon we passed into the beautiful harbor, said to be surpassed by none in the world unless it be that of Rio Janerio. But it is a natural harbor and well fortified. We arrived on the 18th. Took a cab to the city. Sydney has 300,000 inhabitants, has wide streets, and much business is done there. Within the last few years it has improved rapidly. They have established "Free Trade" there. I travelled over a large part of the city. Was informed by Dr. Potts agent, that she was in Melbourne. I took the boat the next day and after a pleasant sail arrived there on Monday, the 21st. Was met by friends on the boat and was driven to my sister's, who had rented a beautiful house, elegantly furnished, for the month she remained there. The hall, which held a large number of people, was crowded in the evening, and the afternoon lecture to ladies was well attended. The physiological lectures are something new here and that they are to be given by a lady adds to the novelty. The rooms were crowded with patients, every day there and since we left, the friends write us that every day ladies come there for treatment. Melbourne has over 300,000 population. It is a beautiful town. But one disadvantage they have in their towns here is surface drainage, which sometimes floods the low places. A short time previous to our going there a carriage upset and the occupant, a man, was drowned near the P. O., in the heart of the city. All over the colony where we have been they have the surface drainage; then when there is a heavy rain it is very unpleasant, inconvenient, and when there is any stoppage, dangerous.

From Melbourne we went to Gelong, a town of 30,000 inhabitants. It has a pretty harbor, quite a seabathing town, many persons coming there to remain during the hot weather. From there we came to Ballarat. It has over 40,000 inhabitants. It is a very pretty town with large wide streets and shade trees on the sides, or two rows through the centre of some, making it more pleasant for man and beast, for some days it is very hot here. We came here on February 11th, and remained two weeks. Some days the thermometer stood at 104 degrees in the shade. Other days it was pleasant; again very cool, fire being comfortable.

There is a beautiful bay here and beautiful gardens. All over the colony there are good substantial buildings. Most of them are stone; also much stone pavement. Ballarat was formerly one of the most paying mining districts in the colony. The town is only 20 years old. There are many mines worked here yet. Some pay very little or are exhausted. On the 16th of February in response to an invitation, I visited a gold mine, the "Kohinoor," near the town. We found the superintendent and engineer waiting for us. They told us the miners had a holiday and had gone to Queen's Cliff, a fashionable resort here. A man took us to a room, where we took off our wraps and donned heavy white oil cloth coats and hats and rubber shoes. There were five of us, so they put three light or two heavy ones on the platform and sent us down 700 feet into the mine. It took two minutes and a half to descend and seemed gloomy enough. We found it dark and wet. We each lighted our candles that had been given us, then followed our guide 230 feet along a narrow passage, walking on two rails. If we missed stepping on them we would get in the mud and water. Then we returned and went up another passage. Saw where they had been getting out the ore which had yielded many hundred thousand dollars, but not yielding much now. They were sinking another shaft there—400 feet deep, to see if they could not get a greater supply, as one of the neighboring mines has done. There were not enough to pay expenses. They sunk another shaft of three hundred feet, where it yiedled largely. Gold may well be called the precious metal. The poor miners work in this dark, dismal, damp place, and only get seven shillings per day (A shilling in English money equals 24 cents in our money.) They get the rheumatism and are not long lived, so they tell us. We saw some of the ore that looked nicely, with brilliant specks, but were glad when we were elevated to the surface again. We were showed the crushers and where the water washed the shining metal over blankets which caught every particle of the dust and where it was smelted, moulded and weighed and concluded it took work there as well as every place else.

Feb. 22. We took the train for Sandhurst, which has over 40,000 inhabitants. And like the other towns it has fine buildings, wide streets and good hotels. We are stopping at one that will compare with any of our first-class hotels in America, called the Shamrock. We have an abundance of fruit—apples and the nicest pears I ever tasted, luscious grapes and nice peaches and watermelons, fresh tomatoes and vegetables. We only get our mail from America once a month. This month's mail from Nebraska said the thermometer was 26° below zero and in Minnesota 40° below, quite a contrast from here, for one day it was very warm. They said it was 107°. Woman physicians are something new here. Every evening the theatre building is crowded, and several hundred ladies come out to hear the lectures which are especially for them, and our rooms are crowded every day with patients, who already testify they have been benefited, and insist as at every other place that my sister, Anna Potts, M. D., or myself should remain with them, as they would gladly welcome a competent woman physician. To-day, the 3d of March, we went to visit the public garden and fernery, which are beautiful, with their green foliage and flowers, fountains and sprays. The stream running through the fernery has white and dark swans and ducks. There is one kind of duck perfectly white, with downy feathers a few inches long hanging from one side of its head, looking very pretty as it coquettishly moves its head from side to side, with its fleecy plumes waving in the breeze. There are walks and seats, and many attractions to make it a place of resort. Sandhurst is a mining district formerly very rich, where many have made fortunes, and many more have lost them. But some mines are now yielding in paying quantities. Others have been abandoned. Lectures were well attended and our rooms crowded with patients during our two week's stay, even to the hour of starting. Part of our company went on the train, but we, who are so closely confined to business and indoors, preferred a carriage ride of 25 miles, to the next town. We saw beautiful scenery, nice flowers, comfortable looking farm houses, cozily tucked in among trees and shrubbery. Near by were great stacks of grain, for harvest is just over. We stopped at a public house where they had many curiosities from the Fiji Islands—war clubs with a great protuberance on one side that would make one shudder at its destructiveness when desperately used by a native Fijian. Among other curiosities, was a Fijian belle's ball dress which consisted of hair about one half yard long woven in a string which was to be tied around the loins. I suppose they prided themselves upon improving on the "Fig leaf." Then there was the most beautiful coral. One presented to me by the landlady, was shaped like a toad stool. There was a large wooden bowl, two feet or more in diameter, over six inches deep, with legs to rest on all hewn out of a solid piece of wood. This was their punch bowl. Their punch or drink was made by the young girls chewing a root called Kaya. A specimen was given us. Then they kept it in this bowl pouring cold water on it, stirring it up. Then the men would drink it, which would cause them to become intoxicated. If hot water were poured on this root it would be poisonous and cause death. There were also birds of the most beautiful plumage I ever saw; but they were stuffed. The landlady had an Australian bird which looked like a parrot but was white with a yellow top. She had it for 15 years. It was very fond of her, would follow her and say "Mamma's baby." Once it had sore eyes and would say "Mamma's poor blind baby."

March 15th. The warm weather has given place to cool days which are getting shorter. To-day we accepted an invitation and rode out two miles to a nice farm house where they had a vineyard of 11 acres, all the bushes hanging with black, blue, white and red grapes, of which they intended to make wine, as they could get only 3d per lb for grapes. Drinking of ardent spirits is much indulged in here. All the hotels have it, and have young women for bar maids. It is sad to see men willing to sell that which will bring only suffering and misery to all who indulge, but it is sadder yet to see women—girls—engaged in the traffic of that which will degrade instead of elevate. Although we don't suppose it is any worse for a woman than a man to violate a law, we generally expect a woman to be engaged in that which is beneficial to humanity as well as herself.

HELIOTROPE.

Amid the chapel's checkered gloom
She laughed with Dora and with Flora,
And chattered in the lecture room—
The saucy little sophomora!
Yet while (as in her other schools)
She was a privileged transgressor,
She never broke the simple rules
Of one particular professor.

But when he spoke of varied lore,
Paroxytones and modes potential,
She listened with a face that wore
A look half fond, half reverential.
To her that earnest voice was sweet;
And, though her love had no confessor,
Her girlish heart lay at the feet
Of that particular professor.

And he had learned, among his books
That held the lore of ages olden,
To watch those ever-changing looks,
The wistful eyes and tresses golden,
That stirred his pulse with passion's pain
And thrilled his heart with soft desire,
Longing for youth to come again,
Crowned with its coronet of fire.

Her sunny smile, her winsome ways,
Were more to him than all his knowledge,
And she preferred his words of praise
To all the honors of the college.
Yet "What am foolish I to him?"
She whispered to her one confessor.
"She thinks me old, and gray and grim."
In silence pondered the professor.

Yet, once when Christmas bells were rung
Above ten thousand solemn churches,
And swelling anthems, grandly sung,
Pealed through the dim cathedral arches—
Ere home returning, filled with hope,
Softly she stole by gate and gable,
And a sweet spray of heliotrope
Left on his littered study table.

Nor came she more, from day to day,
Like sunshine thro' the shadows rifting;
Above her grave, far, far away,
The ever-silent snows were drifting.
And those who mourned her winsome face
Found in its stead a swift successor
And loved another in her place—
All, save the silent, old professor.

But, in the tender twilight gray,
Shut from the sight of carping critic,
His lonely thoughts would often stray
From Vedic verse and tongues Semitic—
Bidding the ghost of perished hope
Mock with its Past the sad possessor
Of the dead spray of heliotrope
That once she gave the old professor.

What Shall we Eat?

This peculiar period of the year when the productions of the garden have not yet reached that state of maturity which will permit them to be used, when meat-eating may be carried to excess, sorely puzzles the careful housewife, part of whose never-ending duty it seems to be to provide palatable food for the three or four meals a day to appease the appetites of the family. It is the period, perhaps, when the appetite is less sharp than at any other, and the most careful seasoning as well as most judicious discrimination are necessary to give a relish to the food.

We find cool custards, creams, cold meats, dishes not too sour nor yet too sweet with such early salads and vegetables as are procurable, to be the most welcome and refreshing. It is to be hoped, too, that the time is not far distant when the strawberry will be low enough in price to be within the reach of the majority. Pies and cakes should be sparingly partaken of as they will increase rather than diminish the feeling of ennui which causes the financial bankrupt to sigh vainly for a home in the woods or down at the level of the sea. Consistency in diet and in the mode of living may prove more beneficial than a two months' vacation.

Howard Humor.

Mr. Conrad Long, who had his knee fractured a few weeks ago, is getting along well, under the careful treatment of Dr. Hensel.

Mr. Wm. P. Lucas was brought home sick the other week from the wood chopping in which he was working.

Mr. Jacob Long, our "standby" postmaster, wears a tranquil smile since nearly as much mail from Marion is sent from the Howard P. O., as from the Jacksonville P. O., caused by a change of location of the P. O. at the latter places

The road from the town to the Creek bridge is in a very bad condition for driving, and should either be repaired or the new road finished.

Dr. Tom. Rothrock is always at some new game. The other evening we saw him trying to teach some gentlemen to nimbly twirl a cane through their fingers.

Rev. Mr. Cooper preached in the Disciple church on Sunday, the 18th, to a large audience. X.

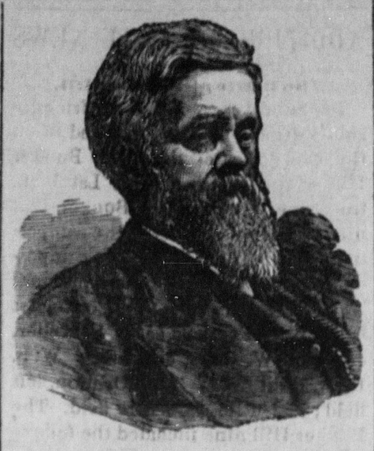
More Bank Failures.

PETERSBURG, Va., May 19.—The Planters and Mechanics bank closed its doors at noon to-day. A heavy run is being made on the Petersburg Savings bank, but it is thought the bank will be able to withstand it.

LAPORT, Ind., May 19.—The City Exchange bank made an assignment Saturday, owing to the failure of Donnel, Lawson & Simpson. Liabilities, $36,000; assets, $21,000.

ERIE, May 19.—The Erie county savings bank, of this city, suspended this morning. Capital, $150,000; liabilities, $300,000. It is said the president has been dabbling in oil. He has left the city.

We do not as a rule allow ourselves to use our editorial columns to speak of any remedy we advertise, but we feel warranted in saying a word for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sarsaparilla has been known as a remedial agent for centuries, and is recognized by all schools of practice as a valuable blood purifier. It is put up in forms of almost infinite variety, but Messrs. Hood & Co. (Lowell, Mass.), who are thoroughly reliable pharmacists, have hit upon a remedy of unusual value. Certainly they have vouchers of cures which we know to be most extraordinary.



THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine is not injurious, and will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leaves room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of those happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

That Doughty Duchess.

Opposite Opinions about a Wonderful Woman—Her Thumb and Fingers.

"Crack nuts with her fingers? Why, you can't mean it!" cried a young lady graduate of the Normal College, in the utmost astonishment.

"But I do mean it," affirmed her big brother who had taken several prizes in athletics, "and I reassert it: that Cymburga, wife of Duke Ernest, of Austria, could crack nuts with her fingers and drive nails into the wall with her thumb."

"What a monstrous woman," said the young lady. "What a useful woman," amended her big brother.

The Austrian Duchess was mighty because she kept good hours, good habits and perfect digestion.

Mrs. Alice Strong, of Pittsburgh, Pa., writes a different story about herself, but deserves praise for her frankness. She says: "For the past three years I have been subject to severe attacks of colic and cramps, and exhausting attacks of diarrhœa. Weary of experimenting with medicines, I turned, without hope, to PARKER'S TONIC. Three bottles cured me entirely. I have tried it also for other ailments with which women are often afflicted, and it far surpassed my expectations. I am happy to offer this testimony for the benefit of other women."

Ladies who are interested in Mrs Strong's letter will please remark that PARKER'S TONIC is not intoxicant. It cures colic easily, but by virtue of many rare and powerful ingredients, it also masters all diseases of the Blood—such, for example, as Rheumatism, Consumption, Scrofula, and all disorders of the Kidneys, Liver and Stomach. It is a vitalizer and stimulant, but not an intoxicant. Prices, 50 cents and $1 per bottle. HISCOX & Co., Chemists, New York.

How Watch Cases are Made.

It is a fact not generally known that the James Boss' Gold Watch Cases really contain more pure gold than many "solid" gold cases. The demand for these watch cases has led to the manufacture of a very poor grade of solid gold watch cases—low in quality, and deficient in quantity. These cases are made from 4½ to 10 karats, and a 5 or 6 karat case is often sold for 12 or 14 karats. It is NOT economy to buy a watch case so poor in quality that it will soon lose its color, or one so soft that it will lose its shape and fail to shut tight, thus letting in dust and damaging the works, or one so thin that a slight blow will break the crystal, and perhaps the movement. It IS economy to buy a James Boss' Gold Watch Case, in which NONE of these things ever occur. This watch case is not an experiment—it has been made nearly thirty years.

HAZLETON, PA., Oct. 24, 1882.
I sold two James Boss' Gold Watch Cases thirty years ago, when they first came out, and they are in good condition yet. One of them is carried by a carpenter, Mr. L. W. Drake, of Hazleton, and only shows the wear in one or two places; the other by Mr. Bowman, of Cunningham, Pa.; and I can produce one or both of these cases at any time.

LATEST TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

The Grief of the Grants.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Mrs. U. S. Grant was much agitated when a reporter called at the house to learn if it were true that U. S. Grant, Jr., had gone to Canada. "It's shameful," she said indignantly, "that such a rumor should be published. Why should my son run away? Why should he be afraid? Is my son a thief?" Tears rose to her eyes as she continued: "The thief is under arrest. The man that robbed and ruined us! My son lives in Morristown. He comes in every morning. Anybody who wants to see any of my sons can do so. They were made victims by this man. They have nothing to conceal." General Grant denied that any of his sons had gone away. "There isn't money enough in the family to take a trip to Canada," he said half sadly, half humorously.

Ferdinand Ward's brother says Tappan made a mistake in having the arrest made, and that Ward will now tell what he knows about Tappan, with disastrous results to that gentleman.

Judge Donohue declined to issue an order of arrest for James C. Fish on affidavits similar to those on which Ward was arrested.

The large purchases of foreign exchange by Grant & Ward just before the failure lead to the belief that Ward intended to flee to Europe with a million and a half, but was prevented by the precipitation of the collapse. A friend of his is quoted as saying that if the failure had occurred two days later Ward would have been on the way.

It is said that United States District Attorney Root has expressed his determination to ask the United States Grand Jury, which meets next month, to indict Ward, Eno and Fish under the National Bank statutes.

The Old Leather Man.

NEW HAVEN, May 22.—The published reports concerning the old leather man this season has brought into notoriety a queer old man who has been known all over Connecticut for years. Nothing is known of his history, and his line of march has never been found out. For ten years past or more he has made trips up and down the Newtown turnpike, between this city and Bridgeport, at comparatively regular intervals. When he reaches the end of the route he always turns east, and it is said that he has a hut or cave in one of the shore towns, where he makes a stop before he tramps northward again. At the upper end of his route he seems to disappear for a time. The suit which he has worn ever since any one in this neighborhood remembers him is composed of old boot legs, coarsely sewn together with leather thongs. They are fashioned into a rude resemblance of a sack coat. His head is covered with a high cap made, like the rest of his apparel, of boot legs, cut square on top. It resembles a short section of stovepipe. He carries a tin pail. When he gets hungry he calls at houses and indicates by signs that he wants something to eat. He usually gets it. Sometimes he puts it in his pail and tramps on; at others he sits down on the doorsteps or by the roadside and eats. He never talks so he can be understood, and it is a disputed question whether he understands English or not.

He Made a Good Haul.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Chas. Hinckley, paying teller of the West Side bank, of this city, has embezzled $96,000 of the bank's funds and has disappeared.

Oil Fire in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24.—All day long fire has been raging at the Atlantic Oil Works. Many storage tanks, the paraffine works and other property has been destroyed. At noon 14 tanks of oil were ablaze and several more in great danger. The flames are spread over five acres, and will likely continue to burn for several days.

At midnight the situation at the oil fire was practically unchanged. Late this afternoon the 25,000 barrel took fire and cannon were at once fired into it and several holes were made in the tank, a 12-pound projectile from a naval howitzer tearing the whole flange from the centre. The oil poured out in torrents and the battery men and firemen were obliged to run from the burning fluid and leave the guns to be destroyed. The oil then burned on without doing other damage. The heavens were illuminated during the night by several tanks of bubbling fire. The conflagration will be apt to burn several days yet.

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—The fire at the oil works of the Atlantic Refinery Company, which broke out on Friday night, continued to burn all day to-day, but it is thought the danger is now past. Early this morning three tanks containing forty thousand barrels of oil exploded, but the oil burned itself out without doing further damage, and to-night only one tank, containing fourteen thousand barrels, was in flames. Unless a high wind should rise it is believed that when the oil in this tank burns out the fire will be checked. A careful estimate to-day places the loss at about four hundred thousand dollars.

Railroad Collision.

SAVANNAH, N. Y., May 25.—On the New York Central railroad train No. 54 from the west, due here at 9:33 o'clock last night, was to have met west bound extra No. 51 at this place. Train No. 54, supposing that No. 51 was on the side track, came down at the rate of thirty miles an hour and struck No. 51, which had not got on the side track, completely demolishing one coach and part of another.

The train that was run into left Syracuse at 8.20 p. m. The train that came in collision with it was the second section of the express train that left Buffalo at 4:20 p. m. The west bound train had orders to proceed to Savannah and there take the side track for the express to pass.

The following persons were killed: Walter H. Watterburg, of New York; John Wright, of Savannah; Michael Doddy and Joseph Bruce, of Rochester. The injured are Michael Engler, of Rochester, right leg injured; Nathen Buckley, Rochester, right thigh broken; Henry W. Sherman, internal injuries and scalp wounds; George Roberts, Rochester, chest bruised and internally injured; Wm. Astor, Rochester, hands injured; S. W. Pitts, Lyons, slightly bruised and cut over right eye; John O. Brady, Rochester, right leg fractured and injured internally; recovery doubtful.

In Memory of Luther.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The ceremony of unveiling the memorial statue of Martin Luther in front of the Memorial Lutheran Church, in the northwestern section of the city, took place to-day, in presence of a large concourse. The figure is of bronze and of colossal proportions.

Associate Justice Miller, of the United States Supreme Court, was the presiding officer and the exercises opened with music by the Marine Band. Senator Omar D. Conger, of Michigan, delivered an oration eulogistic of Luther's life and work and was followed by the Rev. Dr. J. G. Morris, of Baltimore, after which Judge Miller arose and with a few appropriate words gave the signal for the removal of the bunting with which the figure was veiled. The ropes were pulled, but the veil had been unskillfully adjusted and a delay of several minutes ensued. The matter was finally arranged and to the music of Luther's hymn. "Ein Feste Burg," by the band and the clapping of hands by the multitude, the features of the reformer's counterfeit were disclosed. The statue reaches an elevation of more than twenty feet, the pedestal being eleven feet in height. The latter consists of four blocks of dressed granite, the undermost covering an area of one hundred and twenty square feet.

Struck by a Thunderbolt.

TOLEDO, O., May 23.—Two sisters named Mrs. Emma Pfann and Miss Tillie Fear, while walking in the suburbs yesterday afternoon with a baby carriage containing two children, took refuge from a thunderstorm under a poplar tree by the road side. A bolt of lightning struck the tree, tearing it to pieces and killing Miss Fear. The current entered the top of her head, where the hair was torn off in a circle of the size of a quarter of a dollar, and passed through the body, tearing both shoes to pieces. Mrs. Pfann had one shoe torn off and was shocked, but not otherwise hurt. The children were unhurt.

"Unloaded Guns do all the Killing."

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 23.—Andrew Mitchell was accidentally killed last night at a lawn party by Jeff Lee. The two were close friends and sauntered over the lawn. Lee picked up a gun and pointed it playfully at Mitchell. The latter grasped the barrel and lowered it with the remark: "It's the unloaded guns that do all the killing." At that instant the weapon was discharged and the load passed through Mitchell's legs near the thigh, producing instant death.

A Precious Ball Well Caught.

From the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette.

Nora Oberly, a five-year-old daughter of Edmund Oberly, had an experience yesterday which far surpasses any leap for life and liberty performed by circus jumpers. She was locked in a third-story room at the residence of her aunt, at the corner of Liberty and Pleasant streets, while her aunt went out shopping. Being an unwilling prisoner the little one soon cast about for a means of egress, and the only exit she saw was through an open window looking out upon Pleasant street. Out of this window the child clambered and was observed hanging by her tiny arms from the window-sill, fully thirty-five feet from the sidewalk. Passers-by were horror-stricken at the sight, but while others were waiting for the culmination of a fatal fall Louis Kunzman took in the situation at a glance and was quick to act. He was on the opposite side of Pleasant street when he caught sight of the child's peril, and with all speed he placed himself just below and waited.

It was but for a moment. The child's fingers slipped and down through the air she fell to what would have been certain death but that Mr. Kunzman's arms were sure and strong. The girl landed safely in his embrace. It was a dangerous catch for him, for had the falling child struck him on the head it would probably have disabled him. As it was it strained his arms, but he was still able to run at a lively rate as soon as he saw the child was safe, and the crowd of people which had immediately gathered began to sound his praises.

Violent Storm in Texas.

AUSTIN, May 22.—Specials from Tyler, Marlin, Navasata, Crockett, Waverly and other points in northeast Texas report another very heavy rainfall yesterday and last night. Immense tracts of country are flooded. Such tremendous rains have not been known in Texas for many years. Great damage to crops has already resulted. In some sections the crops had been planted twice, and must now be planted again.

In Mexia, added to torrents of rain, a cyclone of much force passed over the northeast portion of the city at 8 o'clock last night. A peculiar glare of light followed its track, at times quite brilliant. It is not believed that much damage resulted. A cyclone 200 yards wide passed between Fairfield and Stewartsville Tuesday noon. Forests were uprooted in its path.

At Hempstead a child 6 weeks old was blown sixty yards and left unhurt. A house containing five negroes was blown down. All escaped except one child, who was killed. Great damage was sustained by all railroads through innumerable washouts. In Eastern Texas railroad traffic is practically at a standstill.

A Sunday Morning Fire.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, May 26.—While everybody was asleep on Sunday morning, about 4 o'clock, the alarm of fire was sounded and it was discovered that the Hollidaysburg iron and nail factory was on fire. The fire engines arrived on the ground late, but worked effectively. The building was totally destroyed. Much of the machinery and the engine were ruined although most of the nail cutters were saved. The damage done to the machinery and building is roughly estimated at from twelve to fifteen thousand dollars. This is partially covered by insurance which amounts to $5,700; $3,100 in the German American of New York and $2,600 in the Insurance Company of North America at Philadelphia.

It is thought that bad characters loafing near the building started the flames. The works will be rebuilt at once.

The Defunct Erie Savings Bank.

ERIE, May 25.—President Adam Brobender, of the defunct Erie County Savings bank has returned to Erie. He admits that he and Cashier Pettit lost $100,000 in grain and oil speculation. Brobender also admits he took money belonging to the bank and paid it to a friend and left. He exonerates the cashier. He is now in jail.

The feeling against Brobender is very strong, as the paper in the bank has proved worthless. Brobender has made an assignment of his private property, valued at $100,000, to his creditors, but this amount will not cover his indebtedness, as the stockholders will probably lose from $200,000 to $250,000. Many of them will probably be ruined.

Victim of a Gold Brick Swindle.

MOBERLEY, Mo., May 21.—Chris. Heck, a merchant of Higbie, nine miles south of here, is the owner of a brass brick, which he is supposed to have purchased for $6,000. A stranger arrived in Higbie a few days ago inquiring for Chris. Heck, saying he had once worked in a mine with him. No person by that name lived there, and he was shown Mr. Hock, who was supposed to be the person desired. The stranger sprung the gold brick trap on Hock, and a portion of the metal was shaved from the brick and taken to Hannibal to be tested. Before reaching there, however, the spurious metal was changed for a smaller sized package of the pure article, and of course it stood the test. This satisfied Hock, and the trade was made.

To be Prosecuted.

PITTSBURG, May 23.—Officials of the Penn bank are preparing evidence and in a few days will bring suit against several prominent business men for maliciously circulating rumors which caused the run on the bank and compelled the suspension.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

The Battle of Bunker Hill.

On Saturday afternoon a friendly game of base ball was engaged in on the level space at the top of Bunker Hill, at the eastern end of Lamb St., the Acme nine and the Bunker Hill nine, of this place, being the competing forces. The Acmes were composed as follows: M. E. Swartz, pitcher; A. O. Yerger, catcher; W. Cooke, 1st base; W. S. Furst, 2d base; H. Keller, 3d base; W. Butts, shortstop; W. S. Brew, right field; T. J. Orbison, left field; J. J. Rhoads, centre field. The Bunker Hill nine included the following celebrated players: Crider, pitcher; Hoffman, catcher; A. McCafferty, 1st base; Howley, 2d base; M. Mc. Cafferty, 3d base; McGinley, shortstop; Tate, right field; Powers, left field; J. McCafferty, centre field. H. Green umpired the game with the skill of a professional and Jackson and Johnston kept the score.

"This is the battle of Bunker Hill," remarked a Bunker Hillite. "Yes, your ammunition is giving out," responded one of the Acmes. The betting was heavily in favor of the Bunker Hillites and as a consequence much money changed hands, for the well-contested game of about 1 hour and 55 minutes resulted in a score of 9 to 7 in favor of the Acmes. Nine innings were played and some of the most brilliant performances in base ball ever seen in Bellefonte gave interest to the game. Morris Swartz occupied the pitcher's box for the visitors and was very effective. He also caught a fly in a manner that called forth tremendous applause. For the Bunker Hillites the pitcher's box was filled alternately by Crider and A. McCafferty, the latter doing very superior work. Yerger, Orbison and Keller caught for the visitors and Hoffman and Howley for the home team, all with equal excellence Other features of the game were Yerger's powerful batting, Will Brew's work in the right field, Cooke on first base and Rhoads in center field. Brew caught two splendid flies while running, which was perhaps the best work of the afternoon. He also made two runs. The only home run was made by Yerger in the 7th inning. Powers and Tate each made two runs for the home team.

The visitors were attired in very tasteful new uniforms and presented an attractive appearance on the field. The score is certainly very creditable. The rapid improvement of the Acmes in the science of the great National game renders them a dangerous element in the field even when the most skilled professionals are arrayed against them.

—Gregg Post, No. 95, G. A. R., to the number of about 40, marched in a body to the Reformed church on Sunday morning. They were attired in their beautiful uniforms and marched with admirable military precision, attracting general notice The discourse delivered by the eloquent pastor of the church, Rev. J. F. Delong was solemn and effective, and its lessons will doubtless inspire the soldier hearers to renewed personal consecration to the service of their country, as well as enlist them in that higher service in the army of the Lord.

—In this issue of the REPUBLICAN appears an intensely interesting letter written by Mrs. R. H. Longshore, who was then on her way to Australia. Mrs. Longshore is a doctor and for many years has lived in the West, though in early years she resided in the vicinity of Milesburg, this county. Her letter contains much information of an important nature; it is written in a charmingly natural manner with no effort at display, yet bearing the unmistakable evidence that its writer is a person of culture and wide experience.

The Harness Trade in Howard.

Mr. James Schofield, the popular harness maker of this place, has purchased the harness establishment owned by the late John T. Stitzer at Howard, and desires to announce the fact to the people of that vicinity. He will put the work of that establishment in the charge of Mr. Ed. Powers, who is a thorough workman. He solicits the trade of Howard, Marsh Creek, Jacksonville and all the people of that part of the county.

The late Mr. Stitzer conducted the business in an honest, upright manner that secured for him a large trade. Mr. Schofield will continue the business on the same honest principles and hopes to infuse such energy into its operations as will merit the fullest confidence of all parties. Honesty, quick sales, superior workmanship and small profits will characterize the operations of the new firm.

For the summer trade he desires especially to draw attention to his splendid stock of buggy harness, light flynets, whips, collars, etc. The sweat pads are just what you want for your old, hard collars.

We heartily commend Mr. Schofield and his able assistants to the people of Howard and all the surrounding country.

—A union temperance meeting was held in the Presbyterian church Sunday evening, the attendance being very large. Rev. Milton K. Foster delivered the discourse, most of the other ministers of the town being present in the pulpit and participating in the service.

—Mr. T. R. Buddinger, of Snow Shoe, who was in town on Saturday morning, wanted to leave on the 9:15 train for home. But through a misunderstanding in regard to the hour of the departure of the train he arrived at the depot just a second too late and consequently had to put in the time as best he could until the departure of the evening train.

Humor in the Stomach.

Much of the distress and sickness attributed to dyspepsia, chronic diarrhœa and other causes is occasioned by humor in the stomach. Several cases, with all the characteristics of these complaints, have been cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Other cures effected by this medicine are so wonderful that the simplest statement of them affords the best proof that it combines rare curative agents and secures the confidence of the people.

The Way to get Married.

Mr. H. S. Glover, of New York, and Miss Hattie Coleman, of Lebanon, were married in truly regal style at the latter place on Thursday. The bride is the daughter of the late G. Dawson Coleman, of Lebanon, who was one of the most extensive iron manufacturers in this State. It is said that five elegant graystone mansions occupy a splendid park of 200 acres in the northern part of Lebanon in which reside the bride's mother and other relatives. A private railroad leads to the estate. Three hundred guests came from a distance and two car loads of waiters and refreshments were received. The wedding presents filled one car. The bride's gifts to her bride's maids and her reception expenses cost $25,000. The people in the employ of the estate were given a holiday and a ton of wedding cake was distributed among them. The ceremony occurred in the Presbyterian church, an arch of evergreen extending all the way to the church from the home of the bride and Brussels carpet being laid the entire distance for the wedding party to pass over. The church was thronged. Permit us here to remark that the above is the proper way to get marrried. People naturally expect it to occur only once in a lifetime and why not make it a great occasion, dispensing hospitality and happiness in all directions and causing general rejoicing?

The Logan Hose Company's Picnic.

As has been heretofore announced, the Logan Hose Compauy will celebrate the Fourth of July by giving a picnic on the fair grounds, to which they have invited fourteen fire companies to participate with them. The companies to whom invitations have been sent are as follows: Friendship, of Tyrone; Good Will and Logan Hose of Altoona; Good Will, of Hollidaysburg; Steam Fire Engine Company of Lewistown; Hope Hose and Steam Fire Engine Company o Lock Haven; Reliance, of Philipsburg; Hook and Ladder, of Clearfield; Mt. Vernon, Paxon and Citizens of Harrisburg; Steam Fire Engine Company, of Shamokin, and the Undine Hose Company of Bellefonte—fourteen in all.

The boys would like some more encouragement in the way of subscriptions toward defraying necessary expenses. The amusements on the fair grounds will consist of dancing and such other diversions as may be suggested to them.

—Register Jas. McClain now attends to the duties of his office seated at a new and very elegant table manufactured at the establishment of R. B. Spangler & Co. It was constructed by Mr. Henry Swartz, an attache of that firm, who understands perfectly all the details of the furniture maker's art. It is a model of beauty and should be inspected by al who are in quest of furniture of this description. We are informed that a similar table has been ordered by Mr. Aaron Williams, and we are quite certain that the beauty of the offices as well as the convenience of their inmates would be promoted if all the tables in the Court House were of this kind.

—Mr. James Schofield, the popular Spring street harness maker, has purchased the harness establishment owned by the late John T. Stitzer, at Howard, where he will continue the business so long and ably carried on in that place. It will be under the personal supervision of Mr. Ed. Powers, who learned his trade with Mr. Schofield, and is an expert workman.

—Water is used very plentifully and even wastefully on the streets.

Ho! For the National Republican Convention.

The excursion rates on the Pennsylvania Railroad to the National Republican Convention are greatly reduced—less than one-half the regular fare. Tickets can be obtained at all the principal railroad stations. They will be sold from May 29 until June 2, inclusive, good going, if used to destination, on or before June 3, and will be good for return passage if used to place of sale on or before June 13. The following are a few of the principal points with rates annexed, being fare for the round trip: Philadelphia, $22.50; Harrisburg, $21.45; Williamsport, $19.65; Scranton, $22 50; Allentown, $22.50; Reading, $22.50; Pottsville, $22.50; Tyrone, $17.95; Johnstown, $16.35; Easton, $23.00; Sunbury, $20.65; Northumberland, $20.65; Lancaster, $22.50; Altoona, $17,50; Lock Haven, $19.10; Wilkesbarre, $21.45; Mauch Chunk, $22.50; Pottstown, $22.50; Huntingdon, $18.50; BELLEFONTE, $18.93; Lewistown, $19.60; Bethlehem, $22.80; Danville, $21.00; Carlisle, $22.05; Chambersburg, $22.25.

The Pennsylvania delegation will make their headquarters at the Grand Pacific Hotel, and persons communicating with Col. D. S. Keller, of this place, at an early day, will be able to procure superior accommodations.

—A young lady writing to a friend who had never seen a game of base ball says: "You must visit me when the base ball season opens. There is so much skill and grace displayed. The pitcher, I will explain it to you. The pitcher—a dear little thing, stands in the middle and throws a ball at another, who stands in front with a long stick in his hand. The thrower tries to hit his stick and the other young man who is called the knocker, tries to so swing his club that it will be impossible for the thrower to hit the stick with the ball. Some of the knockers become very good at this, and some of the darlings could stand there and never have their clubs hit once. The catcher stands behind the knocker, and is just too brave for anything. We girls think he is the nicest one in every club. I think the catchers are very cute and heroic."

—It is with great pleasure we note the increased excellence of the choir of the Episcopal church. Miss Jennie Reynolds, two of the Misses Valentine and Mr. Fred. Reynolds are the most recent acquisitions to the musical force, and the practice of the past two weeks enabled them to render the musical part of the service on Sunday much better than has heretofore been the case. Miss Sarah Bradley's strong, pure alto was especially noticeable on Sunday. She always sings finely, but yesterday excelled herself.

—The scribes who toil all night in writing news and witticisms for the Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin are tormented, and almost driven to desperation, by the infernal discordant blare of a big brass band which seems to be practicing on all sides and above them all at once. Shoot the band!

—Goldsmith Brothers, of the Bee Hive Stores, will demonstrate their patriotism by closing on Memorial Day, giving their numerous employes a holiday. In this they show a commendable degree of public spirit and deserve credit for their bold and decided decision without waiting and parleying to see what others will do.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—It affords me much pleasure to recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. My health has been such that for some years past I have been obliged to take a tonic of some kind in the spring, and have never found anything that hit my wants as your Sarsaparilla. It tones up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, and seems to make me over. Respectfully yours,
J. P. THOMPSON.

One of our prominent business men said to us the other day: "In the spring my wife got all run down and could not eat anything; passing your store I saw a pile of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA in the window, and I got a bottle. After she had been taking it a week she had a rousing appetite, and it did her everything. She took three bottles, and it was the best three dollars I ever invested."

SPICES.—The best cook in the land cannot cook successfully without pure, fresh spices. These we have in every variety. Well-seasoned food adds to long life and happiness.

SUGARS AND SYRUPS.—In Sugars and Syrups we have all the best brands in the market. Much of the sugar now sold is adulterated, and in an article of this kind there is great waste. We buy from reliable dealers, and handle only the genuine goods.

TEAS AND COFFEES.—No breakfast can be thoroughly enjoyed without a good cup of coffee or tea. A drink of this kind is stimulating and goes right to the spot. Our Coffees and Teas are fresh and strictly pure. The fragrant odor which escapes from the steaming pot as it comes in from the kitchen will convince you of this. We sell more coffee than any other two houses in the county. Why? Because we sell the best and the people know it.

NUTS, CONFECTIONERY, ETC.—In Nuts and Confectionery we have everything that is nice, and just what will please the young folks, and old folks as well. Our candies are all pure and wholesome; We do not handle the highly-colored, poisonous mixtures that ruin and decay the teeth. We have new Florida oranges (this fall's crop), fine Figs and Prunes, and a choice line of Canned Fruits and Preserves. Bear this in mind when preparing to Celebrate the merry holidays.

We make special mention of the above lines of goods because they are all leading articles at this season of the year. In other lines our stock is equally fresh and complete.

We buy the Best Goods and sell at the Lowest Figures.

Call in and inspect our No. 1 goods. Then you will know where to purchase when your cupboard needs replenishing.

M. E. General Conference.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—Bishop Harris presided over the Methodist Episcopal conference to-day. The committee on episcopacy have designated the following places as the residences of the bishops for the next four years: Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Washington, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Des Moines, Buffalo, Denver, New Orleans or Austin, Atlanta or Chattanooga, and San Francisco or vicinity. The committe also recommend that the bishops be allowed to select their residences in the order of their election.

The committee on itinerancy resolved to recommend to the conference not to make any change as to the time limit of the pastorate.

Judge Reynolds, of New York, presented report of the judiciary committee recommending that a committee of lawyers appointed by the legal members of the conference be created for the purpose of examining into the deeds of the property belonging to the church. Two clergymen were added to the committee, the appointing power given to the bishop and the report adopted.

The report of the committee on temperance was received. It recommends that the doctrine of constitutional prohibition be taught in all the schools and colleges. The report was adopted under the operation of the previous question. The conference finally allowed a protest to be entered against the adoption of the report.

Rev. J. M. Buckley was elected editor of the Christian Advocate, Rev. J. H. Bayliss of the Western Christian Advocate, Rev. Benjamin St. James Fry of the Central and Rev. O. H. Warren of the Northern The ballot for editor of the Pittsburg Advocate resulted in no choice. Rev. Dr. Smith received 180 votes, being six less than necessary to a choice.

New York Business Men.

NEW YORK, May 20.—A great mass meeting of citizens and business men, called to express their approval of the administration of President Arthur and urge his renomination for a second term, was held to-night in Cooper Union, and a more orderly and intelligent audience was never before seen in this city. At 7.30 o'clock every seat in the building was occupied, and half an hour later when C. N. Bliss, Fabyan & Co., called the meeting to order not another person could find standing room in the hall. The throng still continued to pour into the doorways until finally at ten minutes past 8 Captain McCullough, who was in charge of forty police in the hall, feeling that there might be danger in allowing too many persons to crowd their way in, gave orders to close the outside doors. Frederick S. Swinton, of the Mutual life insurance company, was selected as chairman, and a list of several hundred vice presidents was read. Resolutions in the full spirit of the meeting were read by ex-Judge Horace Russell and unanimously adopted. Addresses were made by Parke Goodwin, editor of the Commercial Advertiser, Henry Ward Beecher, Benjamin H. Bristow and others.

The M. E. General Conference.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—Bishop Foster presided at the Methodist Episcopal conference this morning. W. S. Mills, of Ohio, offered a resolution requesting the executive committee of the United States Evangelical Alliance to devote one day of the week of prayer for the success of constitutional prohibition. Dr. Curry moved that the bishops-elect be invited to take seats on the platform. The motion was adopted and Drs. Walden, Ninde, Mallalieu and Fowler moved to the platform. The report of the committee on episcopacy, recommending a missionary bishop for Africa, was then taken up. Bishop Harris announced the election of Rev. C. W. Smith as editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

Overpowered by Burglars.

FREEPORT, L. I., May 18.—The residence of Dr. J. H. B Denton of this place was robbed this afternoon while all the inmates were away except a servant, who was overpowered by the burglars She gives a description of two negroes, who, she says, were very black, but suspicion points to two white men who are supposed to have disguised themselves with burnt cork.

They took silverware, a gold watch and chain, and two sets of jewelry, all valued at $250. The servant did not notify the members of the family on their arrival, but waited two hours, being afraid she would be accused of the crime.

"Peesness Vhas Shaky."

A few days ago a clothing dealer in one of the cities up the lake shore opened the door for a customer who laid a bundle on the counter and began:

"Two months ago I bought this 'ere suit of clothes of you."

"Oxactly, my friendt, und it doan fit."

"I bought it to bury my brother in. Perhaps you remember the circumstance!"

"Oxactly—mit der greatest pleasure. Vhell, did you dig him oop und take off de clothes?"

"No, sir! My brother lay in a trance for four days and then came to life and is now perfectly well."

"Vhat a shame to act like dot!—Und so he doan vhant der clothes?"

"No; they are too small for him.—Being as he never wore them we thought you might take the suit back and return the money."

"Dot was ompossible, my friendt."

"Why?"

"Vhell, dot vhas not only against all de rules of commerce, but such a practice would bust us all oop.

"I paid you $15; can't you give me $12"

"Ompossible."

"$10."

"My friendt, you doan' know how dis clothing peesness vhas. You bought dot suit eight weeks ago?"

"I did."

"Vhell, right away after dot der vhas an awful decline in wool. Next comes some big failures in Rochester und New York. On top of dot I sell oudt to my brudder. Den my brudder assign to my wife. He Didn't Scare a Bit.

On the train from Cincinnati to Chattanooga the talk of the mob of six or eight in the smoking car ran to train robbery. The subject was canvassed from every standpoint, and all but one agreed that a passenger car could be robbed without danger to the robbers. This chap was selling drugs for a Baltimore house, and he announced his readiness to lay down his life whenever an attempt was made to deprive him of his cash. It was generally believed that his courage was all talk, and by and by when he fell asleep we put up a job on him.

A giant of a chap from Dayton, O., was selected to play robber. He was about the ugliest looking white man anybody had ever set his eyes on, and he borrowed two revolvers, removed the cartridges and waited for the right moment. As the train stopped at a little station the big fellow opened and slammed the door and cried out:

"Hands up, gentlemen! The first one of you who drops a hand is a dead man!

Up went our hands, and the drugman awoke.

"Up with 'em—throw 'em up!" commanded Dayton, as he leveled both shooters at the drummer and slowly advanced.

"Not if I know myself!" was the cool reply, and what did the Marylander do but out with his revolver and began popping away! He had fired four shots and driven the "robber" to the door before any one could grab him and explain matters. One bullet went through the big man's cap, a second burned his cheek, and the third and fourth went through the window. He was whiter than snow as the affair ended, and returning the revolvers to their owners he stood up in the aisle and said:

"Gentlemen, you can put me down as the biggest blamed fool in America! Good night!"

And he took his coat and gripsack and left us for a seat in another coach.

BLANKER THAN BLANK VERSE.—"Here is a poem, which you may publish in your paper," said a young man, with eyes in a fine frenzy rolling as he entered the editorial door "I dashed it off rapidly, in and idle moment, and you will find it in a rough state as it were. You can make such corrections as you think necessary."

"Ah, much obliged," said the editor. "I will give you a check for it at once."

"You are very kind," said the contributor. "I will be delighted."

"There you are," said the editor, handing him the check.

"Many thanks," exclaimed the young man, "I will bring you some other poems."

When he got to the door he suddenly paused, then came back.

"Excuse me," he said. "But you forgot to fill up the check. You have not written the date, nor the amount, nor have you signed your name."

"Oh!" said the editor, "that is all right. You see I have given you a check in its rough state, as it were. You can make such corrections as you think necessary."

——There is as much difference between the counsel that a friend giveth and that which a man giveth himself as there is between the counsel of a friend and of a flatterer, for there is no such a flatterer as is in a man's self, and there is no such remedy against the flattery of a man's self as the liberty of a friend.

—Rev. J. F. DeLong delivered a sermon on the occasion of the dedication of an organ in the Reformed church, Penn Hall, on Sunday, the 18th.

—Senator Wallace says he never sold or bought a share of stock in a margin in his life. All his investments have been made in a square business way.

—Says the Altoona Tribune of last week: "Mr. James McCarty and wife, of Bellefonte, were in the city yesterday attending the wedding of Mr. James McCarty."

—A fistic encounter on Tuesday, the 20th, between a Caucasian and an African did not create near so much excitement as a similar event would have caused in Danville, Va.

—The construction train ran over and killed a heifer Wednesday evening. The animal belonged to Mr. Adams who manages Mr. Miles Green's farm near Milesburg.

—The opening of the new railroad is expected to bring an increased number of students to the State College. The number is now larger than during previous years, being 152.

—Many of our citizens are showing great liberality in their subscriptions to the Base Ball Association, prominent among whom is the President of the Association, Mr. C. G. McMillen.

—Mr. Kirk, the new clerk in Dr. Miles Kirk's drug store, is a cousin of the latter gentleman, not a brother as the types made us say on Monday. Dr. Miles Kirk, be it understood, owns the drug store.

—Mr. Daniel Lesh, a prominent farmer residing near Zion, had $68 stolen from him recently, which amount, he said, constituted all his available cash except 5 cents that the thieves were kind enough to leave in his possession.

—We are much pleased to learn that the business men of this place have concluded to close their offices and stores on Memorial Day. Owing to this fact, it is probable that the observance of the day will be more general than ever before.

—Mrs. David Kreamer, of Aaronsburg, died at her home in that place on Monday, May 19. She was a highly respected lady and had reached the venerable age of 75 years. She leaves a daughter to mourn her departure. The funeral services and interment occurred on Wednesday.

—At Berwick, Pa., a generous friend has given the Y. M. C. A. there three building lots valued at $6,000, and another has generously given over $7,000, while the citizens of the place have already subscribed over $1,600 with the canvass not yet completed, for a building fund. Berwick has a population of only 2,500.

—Several wagon loads of those nomadic inhabitants commonly called Gypsies swooped down on this part of the footstool at noon on Tuesday, the 20th. After exchanging compliments with Mr. F. X. Lehman and creating general excitement among the young folks of Bishop street they went on their way—we hope rejoicing.

—Three brothers met in Mifflin county last week, says the Altoona Tribune, who had not seen each other for several years, whose combined ages footed 180 years. They belonged to a family of fourteen children by one mother, all of whom lived to manhood and womanhood—except one girl who was accidentally drowned at the age of two—married and raised families. The three brothers stood fifth, sixth and seventh in the order of birth, and nine of the family are yet living. Few families of the same number can present such a remarkable record.

—What is considered the most important meeting thus far of the Base Ball Association was held on Monday evening, the 19th. A committee, consisting of Dr. Dartt, C. G. McMillen, F. E. Bible and Rev. J. P. Hughes, was appointed to collect funds and membership dues. A contract was made with Mr. Garbrick for the lease of the fair ground, and a nine was selected, the challenge from the State College being accepted. The game will be played at 10 o'clock a. m. on Memorial Day on the Association ground in this place. The Association is making arrangements to procure a charter, which will enable them to exert a more complete control over the grounds and give them other privileges which are deemed desirable.

Report of a Coroner's Jury.

On Monday, May 19, a coroner's inquest was held on the body of little Dora Spicer, who was killed on Sunday afternoon under such distressing circumstances. The following is a correct copy of the report of the jury:

Centre County, S. S.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

An inquisition, taken at the residence of George Spicer in the borough of Bellefonte, the 19th day of May, 1884, before H. K. Hoy, Coroner of Centre County, upon view of the body of Dora Spicer, then and there lying dead, and upon the oaths respectively of Bartram Galbraith, D. Z. Kline, Daniel Garman, C. Derr, Thos R. Hayes and Jonas Emel, six good and lawful men aforesaid, charged to inquire, on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, when, how and by what means the said Dora Spicer came to her death, do, upon their solemn oaths, say that appears from the evidence before us that her death was caused by being struck upon the head by a stone thrown or rolled down the hill in the rear of the Presbyterian Sabbath school building, causing fracture of the skull and almost instant death. This inquisition further present that they are unable to trace the throwing or rolling of the stone that struck this little girl to any particular boy, but are of opinion that it was put in motion by one of a number of boys that were throwing or rolling stones down the hill when the accident occurred, and in view of this sad death we earnestly request the proper authorities to rigidly enforce the ordinance prohibiting this common habit of throwing stones or other missiles within the limits of this borough.

H. K. Hoy, Coroner,
B. Galbraith, Foreman,
Daniel Garman,
D. Z. Kline,
C. Derr,
Thos. R. Hayes,
Jonas Emel.

We are glad the coroner's jury took occasion to call attention to the laxity of the borough authorities in enforcing important ordinances. Why formulate ordinances if they are not rigidly enforced? A special offense which we would instance at this time is the practice of throwing small pebbles in slings. Usually such missiles are aimed at birds, but they are just as likely to hit somebody in the eye as to hit a bird. Then we never could perceive the peculiar valor on the part of a 100 pound boy in attacking with a weapon a little bird that does not weigh more than two ounces.

Meeting of the Borough Council.

The chief event of interest, on Monday evening, May 19, in the regular meeting of the borough council, was the appearance before that body of J. L. Spangler, Esq., in behalf, as he said, of Sheriff Dunkle and the Commissioners, protesting against the amount of the water tax levied against the county property and the Sheriff individually. He stated that the water in the Court House is used only for cleansing purposes; that the officials in that building were never known to drink water during business hours, and not even a pitcher or ice cooler can be found in any of the offices.

A written communication conveyed an invitation to participate in the Memorial Day celebration, which was accepted.

The reports of the Water, Street and Fire and Police committees evidenced a condition of Spring-fever inactivity in those departments of councilmanic work. The Street committee evidently believe that the mill race bridge is in a condition which requires attention and the Water committee are of opinion that the new waterphone is the greatest invention of the Nineteenth century. It has enabled them to discover leaks where not even the suspicion of a leak heretofore existed.

The Market committee find that by reason of the existence of what seems to be an extremely poor excuse for a market, their receipts from April 19 to May 17 are $2.50.

We believe the Finance, Nuisance and other committees reported and some general conversation was indulged in, but the superfluous electricity in the air added to an equally superfluous fire in the stove hastened that concluding performance—the passing of bills—at an earlier hour than usual.

—The grounds in front of the residences of Messrs. John Hoffer and John Meese on Logan street are undergoing a transformation and will soon be scarcely recognizable because of the spirit of improvement abroad which has taken up its abode at that place.

—We are informed that we should give the sequel of Mr. Lew Shaffer's fishing expedition, but forget whether it was a six mile walk and eighteen trout or an eighteen mile walk with only six trout.

Letters from the People.

Bellefonte, May 20, '84.

Editor Daily News:

I notice an article in your yesterday's issue in regard to the Orchestra which I desire to correct. There has been no re-organization of Orchestra with the exception of a temporary change of a member from one instrument to another. The Messrs. Bierly being very busy and it not being convenient for them to attend during the summer months, the members in Bellefonte thought it best to keep up the organization by meeting regularly for practice, trusting that when it becomes convenient for the Messrs. Bierly to again take part with us we will be in better condition to resume our rehearsals with pleasure and profit to all. That we expect to increase our numbers by adding suitable talent whenever we can do so to our advantage, is correct.

Bellefonte, May 20, '84.

Editor Daily News:

Allow me through your columns to call the attention of the borough authorities to the carelessness of some one over whom they are expected to have an oversight. A deep ditch was dug across the sidewalk in front of the property lately purchased by Mrs. Mann from the VanTries estate, which was left uncovered, and with no light or other means to warn passers-by of their danger. Several persons on their way home, last night, fell into this ditch, and that there was no severe accident to chronicle to-day, and no suit for damages, is a piece of good luck for which the parties responsible for this mantrap ought to be profoundly thankful.

A Victim.

The Mile Posts in Life's Journey.

It is a delightful custom among many of life's pilgrims to pause at certain spots in the journey from the cradle to the grave and there set up mile posts, as it were, to mark their onward progress. On such occasions they call their children and children's children about them to celebrate the event and thus it is made a red-letter day to the entire family connection. On the first day of May, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bible celebrated one of these occasions in a manner similar to what has been their uniform custom for many years past, except that it was perhaps marked by more interest than usual.

The aged couple reside at the residence of their daughter on North Broad street in Philadelphia. At the time mentioned they celebrated the 59th anniversary of their marriage. All their children and grandchildren, now living, except Mr. and Mrs. Edmiston and son, of North Carolina, and Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Bible and family, of this place, were present. The usual entertainment in the way of speeches, music, presenting gifts, etc., gave additional enjoyment to the exercises. Mr. Bible is in his 81st year and Mrs. B. in her 78th, but both in the enjoyment of excellent health. They expect to visit their relatives in this county this summer. It is said that Mrs. Bible is as familiar with the early history of Centre county as any one. Her girlhood days were spent in the vicinity of Milesburg, her maiden name being Harriet Passmore.

Coming Festivities.

A meeting of the Logan Hose Company was held last week at which it was unanimously decided to celebrate to the extent of their ability on the approaching Fourth of July. This will require money, but will also be a benefit to the business men of the town and add to the patriotism of the present and rising generations. Invitations will be extended to thirteen fire companies to unite with them in this celebration. So prepare for the "day we celebrate."

The Undine Hose Company also held an important meeting last week. An invitation to participate in the Memorial Day observances was received and accepted. But what they consider the most important item of business was the beginning of preparations to hold a social hop in the hall of their hose house on Thursday evening, May 29—this week. It is their intention to make this hop a strictly high-toned affair and all bad characters will be rigidly excluded. There will be good music and a large attendance is certain. The evenings are now very pleasant for dancing and the prospects are that they will have a first-class time. It is also appropriate to notice the fact that their hose house is being improved and beautified with fresh paint, making it one of the most attractive places of resort in Bellefonte.

—Manager Speer, of the Western Union, drove thirty miles to Lewistown on Monday, May 19, returning through the rain in the evening.

—Sand papered heads are so numerous that it is difficult to tell when a man's face is turned toward you.

Foot Race at the Glass Works.

Mr. Editor: There was an exciting 100-yard foot race recently near the glass works between two prominent glass blowers, Wm. Culp, American champion, and James Atkinson, English champion, the American coming in ahead by several yards. The English champion fell and looked more like a defeated English pugilist than he did a runner, his face coming in contact with a large rock in his fall. The race will be repeated as soon as Mr. Atkinson goes through a course of sticking plaster and gets himself in the hands of another trainer.

Witness.

—On Tuesday, the 20th, several attaches of the Pennsylvania R. R. circulated in the vicinity of the depot building in this place, all well provided with sextants, lines and compasses, which they used freely in measuring angles, distances, etc. This is the 10,000th time young gentlemen of a similar appearance have arrived and gone through about the same performance. We must suggest that if their services are valued at all in proportion to their good looks and the time they give to the work, these preliminary operations have already cost the Penn'a R. R. Company sufficient to build both the passenger and freight depots.

—It may be of interest to our Lutheran readers to know that a printing press and outfit have been sent to Liberia, Africa, to be used in connection with the Muhlenberg mission, under the charge of Rev. D. A. Day. During Rev. Day's recent visit to this country he formed the acquaintance of many Bellefonte Lutherans and some gifts have been sent to him by the congregation in this place. The press and outfit were bought and shipped about a month ago, under the direction of Revs. Isaac Krider, of Bellwood, and D. R. P. Barry, of Huntingdon.

Honest Comfort.

Following from the Williamsport Sun and Banner is timely and excellent:

Fret not thyself because of evil doers, stock brokers and speculators, for they shall soon be cut down like the grass and wither. The wicked borroweth and payeth not back again. The steps of a good man, one that doeth a legitimate business, are better than the riches of all the wicked men in Wall street. The upright, though he fall, shall not be utterly destroyed. The stock gambler has been seen in great power spreading himself like a green bay tree surrounded with all the luxuries of life for a short time and then passeth away, and lo! he is not.

—To-day is 14 hours and 44 minutes in length.

"100 Doses One Dollar" is true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy.

"Will the coming man smoke?" was settled by Prof. Fisk in his charming pamphlet. He says, moreover, that the rational way to use tobacco is through the pipe. All agree that only the best tobacco should be used. Which is the best? That to which Nature has contributed the most exquisite flavors. Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco fills the bill completely. Nearly two-thirds of all the tobacco grown on the Golden Tobacco belt of North Carolina goes into the manufactory of Blackwell, at Durham. They buy the pick of the entire section. Hence Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco is the best of that tobacco. Don't be deceived when you buy. The Durham Bull trade-mark is on every genuine package.

VIII. The comrades will again assemble at the Post room in full uniform at 7 o'clock p. m. and proceed in a body to the Court House, where the memorial address will be delivered by the Rev. Milton K. Foster.

Upon the Grand Army of the Republic rests the responsibility of keeping this day sacred to the purpose for which it is intended.

The conduct in the past has won for them the esteem and confidence of the public and secured their hearty co-operation in the performance of this sacred duty.

Let each comrade see to it that nothing shall mar the solemnity of the day but prove by their conduct as men and soldiers that the Grand Army reverences the memory of the dead, and is in every way worthy the proud position it has attained.

H. H. BENNER, Commander.
JAS. H. RANKIN, Adjutant.

An Eloquent Kentuckian.

On Thursday evening the Court House was comfortably filled by an audience including the highest culture in this community to listen to Col. Geo. W. Bain, of Kentucky, lecture on "Our Country, our Homes and our Duty." A choir occupied seats in the jury box. The first song rendered was appropriate to the occasion. After the final note of this selection was silent, Rev. Milton K. Foster, by invitation of the presiding officer, D. S. Keller, Esq., offered an earnest prayer, invoking a blessing on the temperance cause, the speaker of the evening, &c. Then the choir sang a very beautiful and inspiring temperance song, and rendered it, too, in a melodious way that showed thorough familiarity. The presiding officer addressed the audience in a few words explanatory of the reason a series of free lectures had been arranged by the W. C. T. U., and introduced Col. Bain.

That gentleman began his address in a voice which, probably by reason of frequent use of late, seemed to be a trifle weak, but which as he proceeded grew stronger and more agreeable. It is a voice over which he exerts perfect control. It is persuasive, magnetic, pathetic. It is capable of expressing the most tragic action as well as the lightest and most trifling banter. It is really true that from the depths of sympathy expressed in uncontrollable tears and sobs he can recall his audience at once into the most uproarous mirth. It would be impossible to give all the good points of the lecture. His Fourth of July oration; his picture of our country from the time of Washington until the Rebellion; its domestic discord and its ineffectual effort to procure a divorce were richly appreciated. His description of a home was deeply impressive as was also the picture of the young man imprisoned for life for one crime committed while he was drunk. His arguments against licensing an evil, human law being the echo of divine law, and the importance of personal responsibility in this important question, were of course not new, but were illustrated with wonderful and convincing force. In depth of argument he is not the equal of Mrs. Foster, of Iowa, who lectured here some time ago, but in fluency, wit and generally happy style he is the peer of any $250-a-night lecturer in the United States; in short, we do not hesitate to term him the best lecturer ever heard in Bellefonte.

The breathless silence of the audience was only interrupted at intervals by enthusiastic applause. The audience were highly pleased. After the gentlemen friends of the W. C. T. U. had gone through the form of a hat collection the choir sang another selection and the meeting was dismissed.

We predict that if the ladies continue to bring hither many more lecturers like Col. Bain the effect upon the people of the town will be very salutary and the temperance sentiment will grow.

Thanks from Brisbin.

WHEREAS, By a raging fire on May 2, the little town of Brisbin was almost totally destroyed, laying in ashes the homes of some 220 families, who formerly had pleasant and comfortable quarters, and were enjoying life in a new, prosperous, enterprising and active borough, but who on the above named day became distressed and destitute, and were made the objects of mercy and charity; and

WHEREAS, The responses to an appeal for aid from various localities were so prompt and generous, and of such a nature as to meet our wants, and that the same have been continued until we have to an extent again become able to provide for ourselves; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the sufferers and people of Brisbin, take pleasure in thus publicly expressing and tendering our sincere and heartfelt thanks to the people of our sister borough, Houtzdale, and the county of Clearfield at large, for the prompt and generous manner in which they rendered us aid and shelter in the time of our dire necessity.

Resolved, That we feel under great obligations to the people of several towns and cities, from Bellefonte and Altoona to Philadelphia and even out of the limits of our own State, for continued expressions of sympathy, in provisions, clothing and sundries, which were highly appreciated for more reasons than because we were in need of the same; and lastly, we confess our inadequacy to express in words the debt of gratitude we owe to the Relief Committee of Houtzdale, who so willingly, ably and impartially with loss of time, and at some expense and trouble conducted the affairs of the commissary to the general satisfaction of those concerned.

Submitted truthfully by the sufferers through their committee, D. H. Thomas, J. A. Baird and J. E. Vaughan.

D. H. THOMAS, Sec'y.

Railroad Consolidation.

Papers of merger and consolidation of the Moshannon and Clearfield and the Tyrone and Clearfield railroads, under the same name as the latter road, were filed in the office of the secretary of the Commonwealth at Harrisburg Friday morning. The Tyrone and Clearfield is a corporation operating 73 miles of road, running from Vail, Blair county, to Curwensville, Clearfield county, with several branches. Its capital stock is $1,000,000. The Moshannon and Clearfield road has a capital of $500,000 and operated a line from Osceola, on the line Tyrone and Clearfield roads through Centre and Clearfield counties to Maderia, in the latter county. The capital stock of the new road is $500,000, and the officers are as follows: Secretary J. K. Dubarry, of Philadelphia; Treasurer, Albert Hanson, of Philadelphia; Directors, T. Ashton, Jno. A. Green, Wistar Morris, H. M. Phillips, Geo. B. Roberts, Edmund Smith and N. P. Shortlidge.

—The time for the Fat vs. Lean base ball game has been changed from Wednesday to Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock on the Fair Ground. The very best material has been selected. One fat man was offended when asked to play, but that was very foolish. We wouldn't be offended at such a request. We expect to publish the names of the players in a few days.

Important Military Orders.

General Orders No. 6 of the National Guard announce the following as the colors of the state, division and brigades of the National Guard:

The division flag the same as the state except that the coat-of-arms shall be set in red, white and blue keystone. The First brigade flag will be of white silk, with fringe, pennant shape, six feet fly, and three feet on staff, state coat-of-arms on red keystone, staff stripe six inches wide, same color as keystone, and lettered: "First Brigade, National Guard of Pennsylvania." Second brigade same as the First brigade, except that it shall be of blue silk, color of keystone and staff stripe shall be white, and the Third brigade same as the First brigade, except the keystone and staff stripe shall be blue.

All enlistments will cease after June 1, until after the encampment, except to fill vacancies caused by the expiration of term of service.

Educational Topics.

The school authorities of this place have concluded to hold the regular examinations for teachers of the public school during the coming year on an earlier date than usual, and announce Saturday, May 31, at 8 o'clock a. m. as the time. The examination will be held in the public school building, before Rev. Prof. D. M. Wolf, county superintendent. At that time all persons who have made application for a school, who are not now in possession of a certificate, will be required to attend. The early date is made in accordance with a general request from teachers who expect to spend their vacation at a distance from Bellefonte, and also to enable those who may not be successful in obtaining a school in this place, to apply for a school in the country, if they desire to do so.

We also learn that the Bellefonte School Board have decided to put steam heat in the school building this summer. It will cost about $1,200, but the investment will be worth the money. The subsequent expense will be decreased and it is expected that the building can be rendered comfortable even in the coldest weather, which has never heretofore been the case. During the past two years it has been necessary to adjourn school in extremely cold weather, which has interfered with the progress of the pupils.

A Pin-nic at Eagleville.

Four or five months ago Mr. Nathan M. Coons, of Eagleville, had the misfortune to have one leg and part of the other foot cut off by the cars. He was an Odd Fellow and the lodge raised a sum of money with which to purchase artificial limbs. After the purchase a surplus of $150 was still on hand. This was presented to Mr. Coons. Afterwards a liberal resident of Eagleville gave him a lot upon which he might erect a store building and another gentleman supplied the lumber for this purpose, giving Mr. Coons as much time as he desired in which to pay for it. Mr. Coons is a worthy citizen, and in order that he may be started in business the good people of Eagleville and surrounding country have decided to give a picnic at Eagleville on July 4th, the proceeds to be given him for the purpose named. This is commendable.—L. H. Democrat.

—On Thursday Mr. R. A. Lowry, of Warriorsmark, and S. C. Stewart, of Tyrone Forges, left for New York city and will take passage on the steamship Asiatic on Saturday for Europe. During their stay abroad they will visit many places of interest, especially those whose bracing atmosphere and healthful climate will be conducive to the health of Mr. Lowry, which in the past year has been greatly on the decline, he having in that time been reduced in weight from 180 to 125 pounds. The most famous summer resorts and health restoring retreats will be the first to visit.

—A few friends of Miss Maggie Shearer, of Blanchard, visited her one day last week and spent a pleasant hour in her company. Miss S. is becoming constantly more popular among the young people who have the pleasure of her acquaintance.

—Rev. John H. Hector, a colored orator, will lecture next Monday evening in the M. E. church of Centre Hall.

In Memoriam.

The 30th day of May, known as "Memorial Day," is set apart as the day for decorating with flowers the graves, and in other respects memorializing the names of our deceased soldiers and sailors:

The comrades of Gregg Post, No. 95, Grand Army of the Republic, in order that the business men of our town, and those in their employ, may join with Gregg Post, No. 95, in honoring the names of our noble dead by taking part in the exercises of the day, most respectfully ask that all places of business in the borough of Bellefonte be kept closed on Friday, May 30th, 1884.

H. H. BENNER, Commander Gregg Post, No. 95.

We understand that the proper persons are circulating a form of agreement to be signed by the business men, in which they pledge themselves to observe the 30th inst. as a holiday.

—On Friday afternoon about five o'clock a team of horses owned by Mr. Jacob Barlett and attached to his local express wagon were standing near the railroad depot while he went to the train to deposit the mail bags which he had just hauled from the post office. Suddenly the horses frightened and ran with terrific speed towards the bridge which crosses the creek. The animals struck the central support of the bridge, the force of their contact with the bridge throwing both of the horses down, one on each side of the central support. Both of the animals were hurt, the injuries of the grey horse being so serious that it was necessary to kill it, the animal almost bleeding to death, however, before that was done.

If any supervisor after 10 days personal notice, neglect or refuse to put up or keep in complete repair index boards as aforesaid, such supervisor shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding $23.

—A member of quite a large family which some time ago took up their abode in Valentines' store came to its death by violent means on Saturday The family was so numerous that they got in the way of the clerks and interfered with their operations. Extermination was thought of and drowning was decided upon as the most merciful means of removing the offending parties. Finally a large bucket was secured and filled with water. All were afraid to perform the deed except Mr. Pearson, who grasped the victim, forcing it into the water and placing a board on top the basket. Thus ended the life of one of the large large family of kittens.

—On Thursday, May 29, one of the most interesting games of base ball of the season will occur on the Association grounds (formerly the fair grounds). It will be between two home nines, one of them chosen from the fattest men in the town and the other from the leanest men. E. J. Swavely will organize the latter and C. G. McMillen the former. The personnel of the two nines will be published next Tuesday. Our readers can perhaps aid the managers in naming and placing the members of the respective clubs, and suggestions from any quarter will be gladly received by them.

A Regimental Reunion.

The fifteenth annual reunion of the Society of the Ninth Pennsylvania Veteran Volunteer Cavalry will be held at Duncannon from Tuesday, June 10th, to Saturday, the 14th, inclusive. The members will go into camp till Saturday morning, the 14th. The business meeting will be held on the afternoon of Thursday, the 12th. Orders for excursion tickets can be had by applying to the secretary, Lieutenant J. D. Landis, Coatesville, Pa., good from June 9th to 14th and return until the 16th, inclusive, on the Pennsylvania R. R. and branches.

—The Times, a Democratic daily newspaper published at sundry times in Altoona, has been resurrected from what was supposed to be death and appeared quite fresh, lively and beautiful on Wednesday morning with H. A. McPike and F. E. McCullough as editors and proprietors. If it maintains its present excellence it should live and prosper. From us it has a hearty welcome.

—The county jail now has seven or eight inmates.

General Beaver for President.

From the Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin: Should Blaine fail in the nomination at Chicago where could a better man be found to concentrate on than General Beaver? One of the bravest soldiers during the war, a patriot and a statesmen in the broadest sense of the term, and a native Pennsylvanian on whom the Republican party could rally in solid column, there is no man among the numerous candidates mentioned, who would give better satisfaction. Had he been nominated for Vice President four years ago, as he should have been, he would have succeeded the lamented Garfield. It would be gratifying to see him come in as the successful dark horse if the Plumed Knight cannot be nominated.

—A Lock Haven Normal School young man who was in town the other day suggested that it would be a good idea to fire off a cannon on top of Half Moon Hill on the Fourth of July so that it can be said that the hill has a bang on its brow.
